A Wonderful Girl.
Russia, Wrong and Right.
Mussolini's Warning.
The Big Bootleg Industry.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

IN A TINY Moth plane, with one small engine, Amy Johnson, 23 years old, British, has flown alone from England to Australia.

Fighting storms, forced to land in Java, starting on again without help, the young girl flew the 10,400 miles from England to Australia in less than 20 days.

YESTERDAY Miss Johnson, with three planes escorting her, was to fly over the wilderness between Port Darwin and Brisbane, later flying on to address the Parliament at Canberry. She will come to this country to meet her father and mother. And this country will be "pleased to meet her."

England reports that "King and Commoner are thrilled." No wonder. Flying offers wonderful opportunities to young women. It requires courage, good nerves, intelligence, in all of which they excel.

RUSSIA'S Communists may be wrong in their social and economic theories, but they are right in their attitude towards their own country's defense.

The Soviet Air League has 5,000,000 members. Russia knows that future war will be air war.

A YOUNG COMMUNIST organization is training 2,000,000 young Russians in drilling and the use of arms. Some of our "How much I love you, let us all be peaceful" Americans could learn something in Russia.

With India in rebellion, China flaming with war, hatred of Italy thinly disguised by France, Italian hatred of France outspoken, Jugoslavia expecting to be turned against Fiume by France, Kemal Pasha expressing his readiness to whip anybody, no wonder Russia thinks war possible and probable and means to be ready. Two countries in Europe would be safest in another war, Switzerland, small nation; Russia, biggest nation. They would be safe, because they are ready.

TALKING to a crowd of 100,000 in the Plaza del Duomo at Milan, Mussolini heard savage cries of "Down with France." He told his audience he knew what other nations were doing, how they felt toward Italy, and did not intend that Italy "should be suddenly awakened with a start by some tragic turn of the wheel of history."

FRANCE and other European countries will keep out of war, if they can. But war comes like a flash of lightning. It could come tomorrow, with its hatreds, blazing patriotism, clergy calling for recruits, promising of God's support, profiteers calling for bond issues, etc.

THIS COUNTRY should be warned by Mussolini, who speaks out, warned by Britain and Japan, that makes fools of our delegates sent abroad, warned, above all, against the danger of World Court and League of Nations entanglements.

We do not want a million other American Gold Star mothers engaging their passage to visit European graveyards.

MR. SOLOMON, arrested by prohibition agents, in a $1,000,000 bootleg distillery in Newark, N. J., at first offered $1,000 to the agent. Finally he said:

"I'll go as high as $80,000."

And he warned the raiding agent:

"You'll get a lot of your friends in trouble by this. Prohibition headquarters is protecting us and a lot of men will lose their jobs."

The $1,000,000 distillery has a capacity of 10,000 gallons a day, worth at retail $100,000, about $500,000 a week. Bootlegging has become an important industry.

IN THE STATE of Washington the Republican party walks out of step with the Republican administration. At Bellingham, Wash., on Saturday, the Republican convention adopted a plank demanding modification of the Prohibition law, also a plank opposing America's entrance into the World Court.

ADMIRAL HUGHES, holding the highest command in the American Navy, opposes the naval pact on the ground that it is harmful and "unjust to the United States." He says it is unjust to this country because it puts our Navy at a disadvantage in relation to the British and Japanese navies.

ADMIRAL SCHOFIELD, second in command to Admiral Hughes, also opposes the pact, as do other high Navy officials. If that pact is forced through by the administration, then the opinions of our highest naval officers count for nothing, and those highest officers should certainly be replaced by others that know what the Navy needs.

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON objects to a special session to force the naval pact through and believes that, if given time to understand it, the people will repudiate the treaty.

It need not take the people long to decide that they do not want Britain and Japan to regulate our national defense. What peculiar weakness makes us incapable of attending to our own affairs?

Britain never asked our advice in the days when she could afford the world's greatest navy. We could afford that now.

NINE 'STRIP' VOTE BOXES SEIZED

Judge Grants Sullivan Plea For Second Ward Recount; Pinchot Force Wins Fight

Post-election developments today were:

1—Judge James R. Macfarlane ordered ballot boxes seized for a recount of the vote in the first nine districts of the Second Ward, after a plea by forces of Congressman P. J. Sullivan. The petition on which the order was made charged fraud in this ward, stronghold of Sullivan's opponent, P. J. O'Malley.

2—The County Commissioners finally agreed to allow Pinchot guards to watch all activities of the return board.

3—Nevertheless County Comsioner C. C. McGovern and other Pinchot followers will continue their 24-hour-a-day vigil on election returns.

CHARGES COUNTERED

Attorney Ben Steinberg, who presented the Sullivan petition, did not reveal the details of the fraud charge. He said:

"We're tickled to death that McGovern has made averments in his petition which asked for a recount of the votes in the First District of the Sixth Ward. Now we know they're wrong."

Congressman Sullivan said that the petition to open the ballot boxes in the Second Ward was only the first step in a move to open more boxes.

ERROR CLAIMED

He added:

"McGovern charges only 528 citizens voted in the First District of the Sixth Ward, but if he will examine the registration books he will find there were 567 registered, and only 550 votes. This is another of his charges of fraud based on error."

The Second Ward gave O'Malley approximately 1,517 votes and Sullivan 477.

O'Malley has refused to concede Sullivan's nomination. O'Mal-

GRAF AWAITS START OF U. S. TRIP

Ship at Pernambuco After Battling Head Winds on Return Flight From Rio

International News Service.

PERNAMBUCO, May 26.—After a night-long battle with severe head-winds which hampered its progress northward along the Brazilian coast, the Graf Zeppelin arrived here today at 8:35 a. m. (7:35 Pittsburgh time).

Despite the early hour, thousands of persons cheered the air liner as it swept through the skies in its second visit to this city. Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, headed the dirigible straight for the Jequia air field, where the Zeppelin first landed after crossing the Atlantic Ocean for the sixth time last week.

CRAFT MOORS AT FIELD

The Graf circled the field once, and then nestled slowly down toward the red and white stub mooring mast erected especially for its first visit. A trained crew of soldiers seized the landing ropes and lowered the ship.

Aided by their previous experience, the ground crew had little difficulty in attaching the airship to the mooring mast. The ship was anchored safely at 9.10 a. m. (8:10 Pittsburgh time).

A huge crowd at the air field again gave the passengers and crew a vociferous welcome.

READ WINDS CUT SPEED

Slow time was made on the journey northward from Rio de Janeiro due to the head winds. The Graf made little more than 50 miles an hour during any part of the trip.

Approximately 24 hours were required for the 1,100-mile flight to Pernambuco from the Brazilian capital.

All arrangements have been completed for refueling and provisioning the Graf for its flight to Lakehurst, N. J., with a scheduled stop at Havana. The time of starting is still problematical, but it is thought likely Dr. Eckener will give the order early Tuesday.

TREATY LASHED AS VOTE NEARS

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(INS.)—The Navy's heaviest artillery was trained on the London Naval Treaty today while Republican leaders were deciding the pact should be voted on by the Senate before adjournment.

Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of operations; Rear Admiral William H. Huff and others before the Foreign Relations Committee roundly condemned the agreement for arms limitation as unfair to the United States.

Huff declared:

"In my opinion the treaty would be a disaster.

"We have given up our right to build the ships we need. We have abandoned the 5-5-3 radio. We have surrendered the principle of no replacements in 1936. We did not press as hard as we might have for actual parity. We gave up our superiority in destroyers. We gave Japan parity in submarines.

"Gentlemen, I have studied this treaty to determine what we get in return for all this—and I do not find anything."

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Penn, inquired:

"We get nothing, Admiral?"

"Very little."

"But you said at first we got nothing."

Responding to President Hoover's wishes, the Republican majority of the Senate, meeting in party conference, agreed informally to pass the long pending tariff bill, the $210,000,000 rivers and harbors bill, the Parker bus bill and veterans' relief legislation and to vote on the naval treaty before adjourning.

Senator Watson (Rep.), of Indiana, majority floor leader, declared this program would keep Congress in session" until after the Fourth of July."

NAVAL BILL REPORTED

The $380,000,000 naval appropriation bill was favorably reported to the Senate today. It carries $49,400,000 for building new warships during the next fiscal year.

This is $18,000,000 more than the similar bill for the current year provides.

Heavy Frost Nips Early Crops

Thousands of tomato plants and other early vegetation were damaged early today by heavy frost reported throughout the Western Pennsylvania district.

The official low temperature reported to the weather bureau was 34 degrees at Mt. Lebanon and 37.8 downtown, a record for this date. The previous low for May 26 was 42 in 1924.

Many commercial gardeners worked late into the night covering tender plant with newspaper cones in an effort to save plants. Amateur gardeners used all sorts of makeshift protectors, including bedclothing, buckets and baskets to protect favorite plants.

An estimate of the damage done can be made when the temperature rises and plants that have been frosted wilt or revive.

BLUE LAW POLL ENTERS COUNTY

As the Blue Law poll of the Sun-Telegraph is extended today beyond the city limits into Allegheny County, the count of ballots cast by registered voters of Pittsburgh passes the 25,000-mark, with 79 per cent favoring repeal of the existing Sunday laws.

The latest tabulation shows 25,058 votes cast, divided as follows:

|---|---|
| For the Blue Laws | 3,361 |
| For Modification | 1,795 |
| For Repeal | 19,902 |

These totals indicate a slight increase in the proportion of voters supporting the Blue Laws. The ratio of votes favoring repeal to votes favoring continuance of the Blue Laws is 5.9-to-1.

The totals are divided between men and women as follows:

For the Blue Laws, 1,811 men and 1,550 women; for modification, 1,067 men and 728 women;

BOBBY JONES, VOIGT WIN

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 26.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones, American open champion, advanced to the third round of the British amateur golf championship today by defeating S. Roper, Wollaton Park, 3 up and 2 to play.

Jones had to shoot inspired golf to win from his sturdy English opponent, who played the first nine holes in 36 strokes, through a combination of nine straight fours. Bobby, however, covered the first nine holes in 33 strokes, including four birdies and an eagle.

Roper clung tenaciously to his brilliant opponent before he was forced to bow at the sixteenth.

Jones joined George Voigt, a Walker Cup team-mate, in the third round, the New Yorker defeating Edward Tipple, 1 up, 19 holes, several hours before the Atlantan finished his match. Both Voigt and Jones had byes in the first round.

Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, American amateur champion, accompanied Jones and Voigt into the third round. Johnston defeated Bernard Darwin, 2 and 1, in the first round, and eliminated Maj. A. J. Barry, 1 up, in their second-round match this afternoon.

DRYS LOSE HIGH COURT TEST CASE

Supreme Tribunal Decides Only Seller of Liquor Is Liable to Prosecution

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(INS.)—The treasury's prohibition enforcement bureau was dealt a blow today when the Supreme Court ruled that denatured alcohol and medicinal preparations containing over one-half of 1 per cent alcohol are not "liquor" within the meaning of the Volstead law and permits for their use cannot be changed by treasury regulations.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP.)—The buyer of bootleg liquor cannot under ordinary circumstances be prosecuted.

In one of the most important decisions under prohibition, the Supreme Court today made this ruling in the test case of James E. Farrar, of Boston.

At the same time, it in effect declined to pass upon the question of whether the buyer of liquor who knows that shipment is involved in delivery, can be prosecuted for conspiracy.

NORRIS CASE IGNORED

The latter case was that of Alfred E. Norris, New York banker, who bought liquor from a Philadelphia bootlegger.

The high court said that since Norris had virtually entered a plea of guilty by pleading no defense, his conviction must be sustained.

In the Farrar case, Justice Sutherland pointed out that up until now the government had not considered the buyer guilty. Commenting that no additional legislation had been passed by Congress, he said the court sustained a lower tribunal's decision that quashed the case against Farrar.

Justice Sutherland said that Congress might have purposely passed no additional laws in order that the buyer might testify against the seller.

Following announcement of the decision, Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of prohibition enforcement, said that the prohibi-

School Pay Awaits New Official

May payrolls of the Board of Public Education, involving the salaries of teachers and other employes, amounting to $600,000, are being held up because of the vacancy in the office of city controller, J. Rodgers McCreery, board solicitor, informed Council today.

Under a rule by the board, no one but the controller, who also serves as school controller, can countersign warrants issued by the board. Since the death of Controller Daniel Winters, May 8, his signature could not be used.

Council is expected to confer with Mayor Kline tomorrow on selection of Winters' successor, with prospect of an election this week.

BROWN BEGINS LUZERNE FIGHT

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 26.—(AP.)—A bond for $10,000 to cover court costs in the opening of 300 ballot boxes was filed here today by supporters of Francis Shunk Brown in the contest attacking legality of votes cast for Gifford Pinchot at the Luzerne County primary election a week ago. Official count of the vote has credited Pinchot with a plurality of more than 26,000 over Brown.

The bond was filed in the prothonotary's office by Attorney Abram Salsburg, chief local counsel for the Brown forces. It was previously approved by Judge Jones.

The contest over the votes credited to Pinchot was gaining definite shape today before the bond was filed. Soon after court opened, Judge John S. Fine called before him County Solicitor John J. Hibbard, local chairman for the Brown forces.

Judge Fine declared to Hibbard that "Luzerne County's good name has been besmirched" by reports spread throughout the state that election fraud was perpetrated here. He wanted to know if Hibbard had any definite charges to file. Judge Fine said that he is ready to summon the grand jury to investigate whatever charges have any merit.

Solicitor Hibbard replied that he and other counsel for Brown will file formal charges before the end of the week.

PINCHOT HOLDS LEAD

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—(AP.)—Official returns from 32 counties and unofficial figures from the remainder of the 67 counties this afternoon showed Gifford Pinchot's lead to be 14,597 over Francis Shunk Brown in the balloting last Tuesday for the Republican nomination for governor. The figures to date stand: Pinchot, 632,990; Brown, 618,393.

$332,076 SPENT BY GRUNDY

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP.)—Investigating its second Pennsylvania primary in four years, a Senate committee learned today that Senator Joseph R. Grundy spent $291,000 of his own money in his unsuccessful campaign for renomination, and that the winner of the Republican senatorial nomination, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, paid out of his own pocket $10,541.

The total expenditure on behalf of Grundy was given as $332,076, but Davis was unable to state how much was spent for him, explaining that his campaign for senator and that of Francis Shunk Brown for governor were conducted by a joint committee.

Mellon Mum in Pittsburgh, Saves Talk for Capital

Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, in Pittsburgh today on a brief business trip, let it be known that hereafter his messages to the public will be issued in Washington. Home town interviews are taboo.

At the Duquesne Club where he had luncheon with his nephew, W. L. Mellon, and several other close friends, it was suggested that he could tell a story of good times, comment on Allegheny County's 13 per cent increase in the new census or offer some remarks about the nomination of Pinchot and Davis. Half apologetically, Secretary Mellon answered:

"I can't say anything about good times or bad times or make any other comment here for the reason that it would not look well for me to be interviewed in Pittsburgh after seeing newspapermen in my office in Washington."

Secretary Mellon came here Saturday and said he would return to Washington tonight. He declared that his visit was to attend to personal affairs.

Dawn on Mountains Thrills Lady Hay; Landing Crew's Clumsiness Causes Delay

EXCLUSIVE

Special Radio Dispatch.

ABOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, En Route from Rio de Janeiro to Recife, May 26.—Like the giant of the skies that it is, the silvery Graf Zeppelin, undismayed by tropical squalls that have cut its speed worse than any other storms, this morning was on its way back to Recife, after almost a day and a half flight to Rio de Janeiro and an hour's rest at Rio.

Our landing at the Brazilian capital was most humorous, and the landing crew provided the laughter. Whether or not they had been instructed how to bring the Zeppelin to the ground, they did not even essay to grasp the landing rope on our first attempt. Some of the select comments which followed that farce made my face red.

The Graf circled over the field at 6:50 o'clock this morning, and when the landing ropes were dropped, the landing crew stood stock still, and the ropes had to be hauled in and another attempt made. This time we were successful, and at 7:27 a. m. (6:27 a. m. Pittsburgh time) we were tied to the ground.

After the crowd which rushed the ship was under control, arrangements were made for our immediate takeoff. We were in the air again at 8:30 a. m. (7:30 a. m. Pittsburgh time).

We hovered long over the famous bay of Rio de Janeiro having arrived there at 11:50 o'clock Saturday (10:50 p. m. Pittsburgh time), hoping not to disturb the inhabitants with the sight of a lighted monster of the skies and its droning motors.

I stayed late on the bridge with Capt. Lehmann's watch, as we sped through the black darkness, pierced here and there by the brilliant coast lights.

A GLITTERING RIO

At 3:15 in the morning, I was back on the bridge again. Rio was a tantalizing view with its long chain of glittering lights, like diamonds strung against a velvet background, which in the darkness marked the sea promenade of this most beautiful bay in all the world. The last quarter of the moon, a glorious gold crescent in reverse position, marked the east and shed a glow on the soft panorama.

BATTLE SQUALLS

Saturday was squally, and the Zeppelin was shaken and shivered by impact after impact of gusts of wind and tropical wind and rain. Dr. Eckener frankly admitted he had no experience with these regions, and that every mile covered was in pioneering uncharted airlanes for airships of the future.

All Saturday, along the coast we battled the squalls. The swampy hinterland patches and forests reminded me of Siberia, while there were many hours when the sea and the sky were invisible through the mists. I vividly recalled the Pacific flight last summer when we ran for 39 out of some 60 hours through dense fog.

Dr. Megias, the King of Spain's doctor, who was called on to attend a member of the crew who was victim of a poisonous insect's bite at Recife, kept declaring that the incident only proves how necessary a doctor is on an airship carrying 60 or more people.

A GLORIOUS DAWN

Dr. Eckener and Capts. Flemming and Von Schiller on the bridge were enthusiastic about the glorious sight of the mountains, silhouetted black against the dawn-streaked sky.

"Beautiful! Beautiful!" Dr. Eckener exclaimed. "But it's just that wild beauty of the mountains which makes Rio unsuitable for an airship base."

The passengers hastened through breakfast, although there was no real hurry.

Everyone was asking "Will we land? How long will we stay?"

At 6:25 o'clock, the fiery crimson ball that is the sun was rising just above the horizon, gilding our gleaming ship. Capt. Flemming, whose watch it was, said to me:

the Bohlen-Phillips ticket were "approximately $200,000."

In the 1926 primary investigation, William S. Vare's expenditure of $785,000 was found by the Senate to be excessive and he was denied a seat.

Asked where the line should be drawn, Grundy said the primary law required so much expenditure that no limit should apply. He declared:

"The money has to be spent. Whatever the cost of educating the people is right."

DAVIS, GRUNDY JOKE

Davis and Grundy shook hands as they met. The winner then sat down and talked for a moment with the loser, both laughing.

During the brief time he was on the stand, Senator Grundy said he "ran separately and apart from any other candidate."

Chairman Nye asked Grundy about signs in Philadelphia bearing the words, "Grundy-Phillips" and other "Grundy-Pinchot."

ALLIANCES DENIED

Grundy replied he did not know of any alliance with other candidates, adding:

"Some of the friends of those other candidates who were carrying me along might have put up these signs."

The committee asked how men without wealth could run in Pennsylvania. Grundy said he thought independent candidates could run all right.

"Do you think laws limiting campaign expenditures are illogical?" Wagner persisted.

"Yes, so long as money is spent according to law."

Grundy said the only poll watchers hired by his committee were in Philadelphia. The election of a governor, he said, "overshadowed everything else."

HITS RAILROAD FUNDS

Answering Wagner, Grundy said he thought a candidate would be "unworthy" if he accepted contributions from the head of a railroad company or other institutions under government regulation.

Grundy had complained previously of the activities of W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in behalf of Davis.

Continuing his reply to Wagner, he said:

"The farther you can keep the government and the state out of the affairs of the people the better it will be. The government is too far in there now."

VAUCLAIN TO REPORT

Secretary Davis then was called. He said he spent $10,541 of his own money and turned over to his committee an additional $9,000 received in contributions.

Asked about the total cost of the campaign for the Davis-Brown ticket, he said Samuel Vauclain, treasurer of that campaign committee, would make a report.

Bohlen, who ran third in the primary, said he had no personal expenditures. His treasurer testified that about $200,000 half of it being contributed by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, was spent on behalf of the ticket.

LINCOLN MENTIONED

Bohlen estimated his vote would have been but half as great without the $200,000 fund.

He was asked by Chairman Nye:

"What chance would Lincoln have had as a candidate in your state without any money?"

Bohlen replied:

"Well, Lincoln was a very attractice personality and I think he would have won."

Webster Drew, a fourth Republican candidate, reported expenditures of $695.

The committee will meet again in a few days.

Veterans Charge Return Board 'Politics'

Gilbert C. Cloonan, county statistician and member of the returning board, today was accused of playing politics in the appointment of returning board workers, by George P. Collins, commander of Allen Camp, No. 15, United Spanish War Veterans.

Collins said he and P. J. Lambert, post commander of the camp of which Cloonan is a member, and D. O. Impson, commander of Hunt Camp, U. S. W. V., were denied reappointment to the board because they supported Charles C. McClain, past state commander of the organization and a World War veteran, for secretary of internal affairs in the primaries, who also lost the returning board position he held last year.

All three men are now occupied in the return board headquarters as outside tabulators for Gifford Pinchot.

SULLIVAN ASKS VOTE SEIZURE

"SECRET COUNT" HALTS

The petition of Mrs. Mary Boyle, a Pinchot follower, which asked the courts to force the County Commissioners to hold all sessions of the return board publicly, was dropped today after counsel for both sides had reached an agreement.

This agreement provided that Pinchot representatives may be present, outside the rail, at all times while the return board is in session and that Attorney Thomas E. Whitten, a return clerk and Pinchot follower, may have the liberty of the entire room in which the board sits.

Pinchot followers had complained that after 4 p. m., when the day's totals were tallied, they were not allowed to observe the proceedings.

The Pinchot followers who will remain on watch outside the rail will check the tallies as they are read by the return board, Commissioner McGovern assured.

AKMSTRONG ABSENT

Commissioner McGovern spent the week-end in his office with several aides, keeping guard on the returns. Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who declared in court Saturday morning, "Let him (McGovern) be there, I'll be there, too," left the office Saturday afternoon and did not put in his appearance yesterday.

Mrs. Boyle in her petition charges that with other members of the return board she was ejected from the room in which the board is functioning on orders of Gilbert C. Cloonan, county statistician. Cloonan and other clerks were continuing the work of the board after its session ended Friday, she alleges.

Pinchot followers today were puzzled by a sudden visit which 50 or more police, including a few captains, made to the court house. Commissioner McGovern said that at 3 a. m. Sunday the police descended on the building, remained for an hour, and disappeared.

Gulf Stream Change Feared by France

PARIS—Is France to become a cold northern country, the prey of blizzards in winter? Is the lovely Riviera to have snow as well as rain? That this will happen as a result of a change in course of the Gulf Stream has been predicted by Sir Arthur H. Rostron, commander of the Cunarder Berengaria.

Sir Arthur not only predicted this, but added that the country of the future is the United States, where temperate climate will prevail as a result of the diverging Gulf Stream.

Pluto, God of Darkness, Name of Newest Planet

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., May 26.—(AP.)—Pluto is the name selected by officials of Lowell Observatory here for the recently discovered trans-Neptunian body previously designated as Planet X.

Roger Lowell Putnam, trustee of the observatory, and nephew of the late Dr. Percival Lowell, who predicted the existence of the planet 16 years before it actually was seen, announced that the name Pluto was chosen after a host of suggested names had been narrowed down to three—Minerva, Pluto and Cronus. The name has been presented to the American Astronomical Society and the Royal Astronomical Society. Mr. Putnam said, and undoubtedly will be approved by the two bodies.

"Minerva, the Goddess of Wisdom, would have been our choice had not her name for so many years been borne by an asteroid.

"Cronus, the son of Uranus and the father of Neptune, also would have been appropriate, but we finally agreed on Pluto, God of the regions of darkness, as most symbolical of the distant unknown region where Planet X holds sway," Mr. Putnam said.

LIQUOR BUYING NOT CRIME, COURT SAYS

Supreme Tribunal Rules Against U. S. in Test Case; Seller Alone Held Guilty

tion unit had always taken the attitude sustained by the court.

The decision is expected to result in renewed agitation for legislation to make the buyer guilty. A bill to that effect is now pending.

LOWER COURT UPHELD

Attorney General Mitchell selected the Farrar case in an attempt to solve several troublesome questions in prohibition enforcement. The Federal District Court quashed the Farrar indictments, holding it was not an offense under the prohibition act to purchase liquor from a bootlegger.

The government took the position in the Supreme Court that all purchases of liquor, except under a permit or a physician's prescription, were illegal.

Counsel for Farrar argued that the permits which the government insisted were necessary to legalize the purchase of liquor were issued only to manufacturers and others authorized to withdraw liquor and alcohol for other than beverage purposes, and did not apply to purchasers from bootleggers.

He also pointed out that while the prohibition amendment was being framed in Congress, unsuccessful efforts were made to penalize purchasers, and that Senator Sheppard, of Texas, one of the proponents of the prohibition amendment, recognized that it did not cover purchases from bootleggers and now had pending a bill to make such purchases illegal.

TEXT OF OPINION

No dissent was announced to the opinion in the Farrar case, which said:

"Since long before the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment it has been held with practical unanimity that, in the absence of an express statutory provision to the contrary, the purchaser of intoxicating liquor, the sale of which was prohibited, was guilty of no offense. And statutes to the contrary have been the rare exception.

"Probably it was thought more important to preserve the complete freedom of the purchaser to testify against the seller than to punish him for making the purchase.

"However that may be, it is fair to assume that Congress, when it came to pass the prohibition act, knew this history and, acting in the light of it, deliberately and designedly omitted to impose upon the purchaser of liquor for beverage purposes any criminal liability.

"If aid were needed to support this view of the matter, it would be found in the facts conceded by the government brief, that during the entire life of the national prohibition act, a period of 10 years, the executive department charged with the administration and enforcement of the act have uniformly construed it as not including the purchaser in a case like the present; no prosecution until the present one has ever been undertaken upon a different theory; and Congress of course well aware of this construction and practice, has significantly left the law in its original form."

HAS NO EFFECT HERE

John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for the Pittsburgh district, said the Supreme Court decision exempting purchasers of liquor from prosecution would not effect enforcement of the dry laws by his office. Pennington said:

"In my four years as administrator here we have never arrested one purchaser of liquor. We shall continue our enforcement program as heretofore. Buyers will not be prosecuted."

2 'SHOW BOAT' MEN HELD

Louis Markovitz, reputed manager, and Milton Jaffe, one of the alleged proprietors of the "Show Boat," raided by dry agents May 15, were held for Federal Court, charged with the sale and possession of liquor, by the United States commissioner today.

Jakie Klein, prominent in the activities of William L. King, erstwhile vice crusader, was discharged when prohibition agents failed to produce evidence that Klein had any connection with the operation of the boat, which is moored in the Allegheny river at Sixth street.

Markovitz and Jaffe were held on testimony of agents at a previous hearing that they had bought liquor on the boat twice from Don Collins. They were released in $2,000 bail each.

Frank T. Graham, said to head the company under which the boat was operated, named as a fourth defendant, has not been apprehended.

Roulette wheels and other gambling equipment seized in the raid, which halted the gaiety of scores of fashionable men and women patrons, were turned over to the county detectives. District Attorney Andrew T. Park said he would prosecute the proprietors on gambling charges.

The "Show Boat" is under a temporary liquor padlock injunction.

for repeal, 13,364 men and 6,538 women.

Ballots counted for the day number 1,437, divided as follows:

For the Blue Laws 242, for modification 81, for repeal 1,114.

COUNTY CANVASS

Distribution of ballots to eligible voters of the three third-class cities, and all the boroughs and townships of Allegheny County was started today. Postcard ballots similar in all respects to those being mailed to registered voters of Pittsburgh will go to county voters on the eligible lists in each subdivision of the county, except that the city, borough or township is designated on the ballot.

The majority of clerks engaged in the poll has been assigned to the task of compiling the names from the official assessors' lists in the Court House and addressing ballots. The boroughs and townships will be selected in alphabetical order for the shipment of ballots.

PHILADELPHIA HOSTILE

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—The final tabulation of votes in the Blue Law poll of Philadelphia by The Philadelphia Record shows that the voters of this city are overwhelmingly opposed to the ancient laws prescribing Sunday observance in Pennsylvania.

More than 81 per cent of the total vote cast favored repeal of the Blue Laws, and the final ratio of voters favoring repeal to voters favoring continuance of the laws was 5.6-to-1. The complete count shows 289,268 ballots cast in the poll, divided as follows:

|---|---|
| For the Blue Laws | 42,090 |
| For modification | 11,834 |
| For repeal | 235,344 |

These figures represent 14.5 per cent for the Blue Laws, 4.1 per cent for modification and 81.4 per cent for repeal. Every one of the 48 wards of the city voted for repeal, 43 wards voting better than 5-to-1 for repeal and only five wards voting lower than 4-to-1.

RECORD RESPONSE

The proportion of returns in the poll created a record, being twice as great as the high mark set by the Literary Digest in its poll on prohibition. A ballot was mailed to every one of the 597,617 registered voters of Philadelphia and the total vote cast, 289,268, constituted a return of 48.4 per cent. The total is higher than the number of votes officially cast by the electors of the city in each of its two last referenda, the 1930 loan fund measure and the 1929 voting machine referendum.

In addition to the poll of the city, which is co-extensive with the county, four separate Blue Laws polls were conducted among physicians, educators, lawyers and clergymen. Each of these groups registered its opposition to the Blue Laws, the ratio favoring repeal compared to continuance of the law ranging from 6.8-to-1 for the lawyers to 1.4-to-1 for the clergymen.

FOURTH MARINE HELD IN KILLING

TOMS RIVER, N. J., May 26.—(AP.)—Giles Leon Bagwell, the last of four marines sought in connection with the double slaying, on May 16, of Robert Evans, former sailor, and his friend, Albert Duffy, was arrested yesterday at his home in Pickens County, S. C.

County authorities believed that Bagwell would be able to clear up conflicting stories of the fatal shooting and beating of the two friends on May 16. At first it was thought Evans and Duffy had killed each other.

In addition to Bagwell, four other persons are being held in connection with the deaths. They are Mrs. Hattie Evans, widow of the former sailor, held as a material witness, and three other marines from the naval air station at Lakehurst, Lester J. Underdown, Claude E. Carmichael and Madison Chappel.

Both Carmichael and Chappel admitted having been present at the time of the killings, but accused Underdown as the one who fired the shots that killed Evans and Duffy, a Brooklyn apartment house superintendent.

7 ARRESTED IN OHIO BLUE LAW RAID

Police Chief Quits When He Is Asked to 'Bomb' Show Running Sunday Movies

DOVER, O., May 26.—Seven persons were at liberty under bond pending action of the grand jury, and a police chief was without a job here today as a climax to several years' controversy over the Ohio Blue Laws.

Chief of Police William E. Byers, 62, resigned yesterday rather than obey orders to hurl tear gas bombs, if necessary, into the projection booth of the Bexley movie theater to halt the showing of the film.

Byers declared:

"I will not endanger persons operating the projection machine nor those in the audience by use of tear gas."

Mayor W. R. Stucky denied that Chief Byers' objection to using tear gas prompted his resignation. Stucky said:

"Byers didn't quit on account of the order to use tear gas if necessary. He objected to closing the theater on Sunday. We are going to enforce the Sunday closing law in Dover regardless of what action the grand jury may take."

FACE CHARGES

Edward Schoelles, director of public safety, named Frank H. Javens acting chief. Javens and a squad of police arrested the manager and six employes.

All were charged with violation of an Ohio state law, enacted in 1911, prohibiting Sunday movies and similar entertainments for which admission is charged.

Those arrested were William E. Burton, manager; M. E. Pender, assistant projection machine operator; Glen J. Hiller, usher; Oscar J. Allman, ticket seller; Raymond G. Camp, operator; Robert Blankenhorn, usher, and Mrs. Martha Joyce, ticket seller. All were released in $300 bond each for the grand jury.

With arrest of the management and machine operators, the theater was closed and made no attempt to open last night.

MORE 'BLUE SNOOPING'

TRENTON, N. J., May 26.—(AP.)—The vice and immorality act of 1798 was lifted out of the almost forgotten past yesterday and dumped into a 1930 Sabbath.

Policemen went sleuthing all over the city, armed with notebooks and pencils, and whenever they saw somebody buying cigarets, gasoline or groceries, playing golf or tennis, or fishing, they wrote down his name.

The names accumulated by the police will be presented to the grand jury.

BRADDOCK FIRE DRIVES OUT 11

Fire, believed to have originated from an overheated water heater, early today swept the third floor of the Journal Building, John street and Maple way, Braddock, drove 11 persons, who had been asleep, to the street and caused damage estimated by firemen from $30,000 to $50,000.

The fire was discovered at 4:40 a. m. by John O'Connell, living on the second floor.

James L. Quinn, owner of the Journal, a semi-weekly newspaper, as well as of the building, occupied the third floor with his wife and three children. Mrs. Quinn, recently released from a hospital, suffered from shock and was sent to Braddock Hospital. On the second floor, occupants besides O'Connell were Police Lieutenant Edward McDonough and his wife, and Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Fortier.

Although machinery in the newspaper plant was seriously damaged by water, Quinn today was busy arranging for publication tomorrow.

Opera of 'Jazz-Mad' U. S. Scores Hit in Germany

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Germany, May 26.—(AP.)—An ultra-modern operatic presentation of a "jazz-mad" America in the midst of a presidential election campaign, written by the American composer, George Antheil, last night roused a European audience to stormy applause when the Civic Opera Company gave it its world premier.

The composer, a native of Trenton, N. J., but a resident of Paris for the past eight years, describes his work, "Transatlantic" by name, as a picture of life on the other side of the Atlantic.

It is in fact a perfect picture of America as imagined by the average European. Everything from smuggled liquor to the Salvation Army is musically interpreted in this opera.

The plot concerns the love of a presidential candidate for a certain Helena, who is being used by an unscrupulous oil magnate to make politics safe for the petroleum interests.

The candidate, driven to nervous breakdown by politics and woman's perfidy, spends practically the whole last act in choking Helena, but he finally relents and saves her life when she, having left him, attempts to commit suicide off Brooklyn Bridge.

The opera ends with a triumphal parade across the bridge, skyscrapers in the background, and with the leading off to jail of the oil magnate, a scene cynically introduced for the "happy ending."

Drys and anti-drys figure extensively in the performance, one scene even featuring a raid by prohibition agents on a night club.

15 KILLED, MANY HURT IN CLASH AT RANGOON

Martial Law Threatened; New Salt Raids Swell Indian Revolt Casualties

International News Service.

LONDON, May 26.—Fifteen are known to be dead and hundreds wounded as the result of a bloody clash between dock strikers and strike-breakers at Rangoon, India, late dispatches to London evening newspapers declared today.

An Exchange Telegraph report from Rangoon said martial law might be declared to prevent further bloodshed. Mounted police are patrolling the streets, augmented by detachments of the Cameron Highlanders and the Punjab regiment.

Heavy forces are stationed at strategic points, to break down the first show of violence.

All shops and bazaars are closed, and business is virtually at a standstill in the affected area.

SCORES HURT IN CLASH

Scores were hurt when a band of Nationalists attempted a new raid on the Wadala salt pans. The raiders, numbering several thousand, were driven back by police after a strenuous battle. More than 100 were arrested.

Two were killed in communal rioting at Decca, Bengal, during which numerous shops were looted. Twenty were injured in an outbreak of violence at Amritsar.

The "war council" of the Nationalist congress convened in a secret meeting at Bombay to consider the situation brought about by the week-end raids, in which rioting developed and finally led to the police firing six rounds into the mob.

REPUDIATION FORESEEN IN U. S.

Anti-Drys Also Jubilant Over Sharp Thrust Made At Prohibition Regime

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Repudiation of the League of Nations and the League Court by Republicans in the State of Washington, together with their sharp attack on prohibition, has evoked hearty commendation from many leading senators and representatives here.

The open break with the administration's policies, which marked the Republican state convention in Bellingham, Wash., Saturday, is expected to have far-reaching influence here. Still greater political upheavals are predicted, now that the way has been paved for the long-threatened Far Western revolt against the dry law and the entanglements of the League Court.

Warm approval of the Republican stand against American entry into any form of the Geneva Tribunal came from Republican as well as Democratic sources and even won a tribute from Senator Henrik Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor member, of Minnesota.

Prominent Republicans like Senators Hiram Johnson, of California; James E. Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader of the upper House; Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana, and Borah, of Idaho, were unanimous with their Democratic colleagues like Senators Dill, of Washington, and Walsh, of Massachusetts, in hailing the action of the Washington Republicans.

JOHNSON LAUDS STAND

Senator Johnson thus expressed his feelings on the Washington results:

"The action of the Republicans of Washington concerning the League of Nations and the League Court is indicative of the overwhelming sentiment in this country concerning our going into Europe or yielding our American positions at the behest of foreign diplomacy."

The sentiment of Senator Shipstead was also cordially enthusiastic of the anti-League Court attitude of the Washington Republicans. He declared:

"Their action speaks stronger than anything I could say. It needs no interpretation. It indicates that a reaction is taking place and that the country is gradually waking up to the dangers to be found whenever salesmanship takes the place of statesmanship."

MORE SUPPORT SEEN

The Republican leader of the Senate, James E. Watson, indorsed the action of his Pacific Coast partisans. He declared:

"I am indeed happy over the action of the Washington State Republicans. And that would be the action taken by an overwhelming majority of the states if they debated the situation thoroughly and understood what it means."

Mrs. Ruth McCormick, who recently won the Illinois senatorial nomination on a platform opposing entry into the League Court, declared that the action of the Washington Republicans was in line with the sentiment of the people throughout the country. She added:

"If I were asked to state the issue upon which the people of the United States are most generally agreed, I would say 'opposition to the United States entering the League Court.'"

JONES FRANKLY PUZZLED

"I don't know what it all means."

Shaking his head sadly, Senator Wesley L. Jones (Rep.), of Washington, author of the five-and-ten prohibition law and leader of the Senate drys, made this comment today concerning the action of the Republican state convention in Washington, in adopting an anti-prohibition plank in its platform. He repeated:

"I don't know what it all means. Our people have always been dry and I don't think there has been any change in their sentiment."

The action of the Republican state convention came as a distinct shock to the prohibition forces here. By the anti-drys, however, the news was received with undisguised elation. To capture the home state of the leader of the Senate drys represents, in the eyes of the anti-drys, no small achievement.

There is no senatorial election in Washington this year, but the four dry Republican members of the House from that state were considerably perturbed by the action of the convention.

Severe Blow to Dry, League Policies of Hoover Seen

SEATTLE, May 26.—Echoes of Washington's volcanic Republican state convention at Bellingham Saturday were reverberating across the continent today as harbingers of still greater political upheavals to come.

The action of the delegates was considered a severe blow to two major policies of President Hoover, and of great national significance in view of the fact that this state led the fight for Hoover two years ago.

25,000-FT. LEAP SETS RECORD

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—(AP.)—Bert White, 27, today held the unofficial world's parachute jump record, the result of a leap yesterday from an airplane as it soared 25,000 feet above the Mojave Desert near Lancaster, Cal.

Trusting his life to the silken fabric, White dropped from the plane piloted by Earl Gordon and hurtled through the air in what was believed the highest altitude jump ever attempted.

He said he was unconscious for a while after he leaped, and landed 28 minutes after regaining his senses. His parachute was tripped automatically by a cord attached to the plane.

The jumper was not located until an hour after he reached the ground. He suffered no ill effects except temporary loss of speech.

A sealed barograph, which White carried strapped to his body, will be sent to Washington for official calibration. White hopes to receive credit for breaking the record of 24,462 feet established by Capt. W. A. Stevens at McCook Field, Dayton, O., in 1922.

SEES MORROW CHOICE IN '32

MILWAUKEE, May 26.—(AP.)—P. Scott McBride, national superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, told an audience in the West Allis Methodist Church last night that the entrance of Dwight W. Morrow as a senatorial candidate in New Jersey might portend the desire of the Republican party to have an anti-dry candidate in readiness for the 1932 presidential race.

McBride said he believed Republicans were grooming Morrow as a presidential candidate in the event they interpreted public sentiment as shifting toward modification or repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

He assailed Morrow's prohibition views as "amusing."

The dry leader said one of the biggest handicaps the prohibitionists had to overcome was the attitude of newspapermen and the press. He said:

"Nearly all newspapermen are wet and would be glad to see the prohibition amendment repealed. They feel that things are livelier under a wet regime and that they are handicapped under prohibition from finding stories with the color they like."

Morrow Puts Limit Of $40,000 for Race

TRENTON, N. J., May 26.—(INS.)—Campaign expenses of Dwight W. Morrow, candidate for United States Senator in next month's primary election, to date have totaled less than $10,000, it was announced today. ## 3,000 See Pilot in Futile Dive to Save Woman

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., May 26.—(AP.)—An aviator's desperate and futile attempt to save the life of a woman parachute jumper whose apparatus became tangled when she made a leap from an altitude of 2,500 feet, was witnessed by a crowd of 3,000 persons at an airport here.

The victim was Mrs. Florence Palmer Davis, 19, of Normal, Ill., who was making her first try at parachute jumping.

Mrs. Davis went aloft in a cabin plane piloted by Art Carnahan. At 2,500 feet she stepped out. But, nervous, she pulled the ring of her release cord too soon and the tangle of rope caught on the service handle of the tail of the plane. The jerk ripped the chute across the middle, making it useless.

Carnahan put his plane into a steep dive in an effort to tangle his wing struts in the chute streaming above the falling woman. But he could not get down fast enough.

Mrs. Davis fell in a field adjoining the airport. She was alive, but unconscious, when rescuers arrived. She died shortly after being taken to a hospital.

CANNON SCORED AS GAMBLER

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 26.—(AP.)—The Savannah Morning News today published a sermon by Dr. John E. White, president of the Georgia Baptist convention, in which Dr. White criticized the disposal of charges of stock speculation brought against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., at the recent conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Dr. White said in part:

"This is not a matter for Methodists only—it upsets us all. It is a wound keenly felt by all evangelical christianity. It is especially a heavy blow to the cause of prohibition, for which Baptists and Methodists in the South stand together in close sympathy.

"There should have been some way for a great church conference to indicate its support of Bishop Cannon's prohibition activities and, at the same time, to repudiate his gambling activities. The conference passed resolutions condemning all sorts of gambling, but it whitewashed the gambler."

FIRE DESTROYS LINER AT PIER

HONOLULU, T. H., May 26.—(INS.)—Having suffered the fate of her predecessor—destruction by fire—the passenger liner City of Honolulu lies today, a blackened hulk, alongside Pier 8 where she was scuttled last night to avoid the danger of an explosion.

The original City of Honolulu burned in mid-Pacific in 1922, when on her maiden voyage over the Los Angeles-Honolulu run. The new City of Honolulu, placed on the same run in 1927 after $2,000,000 had been expended in remodeling the vessel, was discovered on fire as she lay at her lock late yesterday.

The vessel carried 25,000 barrels of oil.

Both are in the Uniontown Hospital suffering from fractured skulls and severe lacerations. The car the two occupied rolled down an embankment.

Britain's Queen Observes 63rd Birthday Quietly

LONDON, May 26.—(AP.)—Queen Mary today celebrated her sixty-third birthday in the privacy of Buckingham Palace, where all the family were gathered with congratulations and presents.

Most importance was attached to the visit of the grandchildren—Princess Mary's two sons and little Princess Elizabeth, of York—whose presentation of gifts to grandma was made with impressive enthusiasm.

There was no national celebration except for the firing of artillery salutes at London, Windsor and naval and military stations.

VOTE OF STATE CLAIMED DRY

Pennsylvania is definitely identified as a dry state as a result of the nomination of Gifford Pinchot as Republican candidate for governor, Dr. Homer W. Tope, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, declared in an address at the Central Presbyterian Church, McKeesport, yesterday. He said in part:

"Mr. Pinchot's nomination, which is practically equivalent to assurance of his election, is a guaranty against repeal of the state enforcement law by the 'wet' group. Twenty-one of the congressional candidates on the ticket are supporters of the present constitutional policy toward the liquor question."

Seeking Identity Of River Victim

The identity of a man, aged about 35 whose body was found floating in the river at McKeesport yesterday was being sought by morgue attaches today. The body, discovered by boys playing near the bank, was removed to a McKeesport undertaking establishment.

Student Sees Girl With Rival, Ends Life

CHICAGO, May 26.—(INS)—Seeing his sweetheart with a rival proved too much for James Parkinson, 19-year-old student at Crane College, and today he is dead from having swallowed a vial of poison.

After mixing his own poison potion, Parkinson walked to the girl's home, summoned her to the door and drank it before she could intercept him.

Altoona Crashes Cost Lives of 3

ARCHBISHOP'S RITES FRIDAY

LONDON, May 26.—(AP)—Lord Randall Thomas Davidson, former archbishop of Canterbury, who died peacefully in his sleep yesterday, will be buried with impressive ceremonies in Canterbury Cathedral on Friday.

The services will be conducted by Lord Davidson's successor in the See of Canterbury, Archbishop Cosmo Gordon Lang, primate of England. King George will be represented.

Lord Davidson, who was primate of England from 1903 to 1928, had been ill for some time at his Chelsea home and began to sink Saturday.

Death was due to old age. Throughout the night Lady Davidson, despite her frail health, kept vigil at his bedside.

Lord and Lady Davidson had no children. Thus there is no heir to the barony and the first temporal peerage bestowed upon an English churchman becomes extinct.

Al Smith Writes Book on Civil Government

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP)—Harper & Brothers have announced that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith has contracted to write a book discussing the structure of American civil government.

The tentative title of the book is "The Citizen and His Government."

The announcement said:

"The proposed book is the result of a profound conviction on the part of the former governor that the nature and scope of government is to be charged to the lack of knowledge on the part of the man in the street of what his government, city, state or nation, can reasonably be expected to do for him."

Professor Praises Modern College Boy

PRINCETON, N. J., May 26.—William Berryman Scott, professor of geology at Princeton University for 50 years, comes to the aid of the modern college boy. His own contemporaries, he says, "must have been a rather disorderly lot, distinctly inferior in manners and behavior to their modern successors."

LANDING CREW DELAYS GRAF'S RIO MOORING

Failure to Give Signal Causes Mixup; U. S. Envoy And Prince Greet Ship

EXCLUSIVE

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Special Cable Dispatch.

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, En Route from Rio de Janeiro to Recife, May 26.—Back over the coastline of Brazil, over the squall-beset 1,200 miles which we flew from Recife to Rio, the Graf Zeppelin fought its way today after an hour's stop at the capital of Brazil.

The Graf landed at Campo Affonso, Rio de Janeiro, at 1:27 a. m. yesterday (6:27 a. m. Pittsburgh time), after the roughest day it has been through since a storm on the Mexican border while crossing the United States in the world flight. The hop down from Recife (Pernambuco) took 31 hours 35 minutes.

We were off again at 8:30 a. m.

LAND CREW FAILS TO ACT

After standing outside Rio de Janeiro harbor for hours, so as not to awaken the city, the Graf circled over the landing field at 6:50 a. m.

First attempts at a landing failed. The ropes were dropped but the uniformed landing crew made not a move to seize them.

The ropes were hauled in and another circle made. There ensued some choice airmen's language on the bridge.

When the ship touched the ground, it was discovered the officers on the bridge had not put out the landing flag, which is the signal for the landing crew to grasp the ropes and pull.

At 7:09 the landing crew finally began to haul on the ropes. At 7:27 the great ship touched the ground.

SURROUNDED BY THRONG

The Graf was quickly surrounded by a throng of 5,000. The American ambassador to Brazil, Edwin V. Morgan, and Prince Louis Ferdinand, second son of the former crown prince of Germany, were among the first to meet the ship. The last time I had seen Prince Louis was in Los Angeles at the dinner given to the round-the-world passengers by Miss Marion Davies.

Brazilian government officials came aboard to pay their respects and welcome the visitors.

A beautiful picture broke upon us as we came opposite Rio shortly after midnight Saturday. There was a burst of myriad lights on one side, with the dying moon in a starry sky.

LINGERS OUTSIDE HARBOR

Dr. Eckener ordered the Graf's remaining several miles off the harbor entrance where two and sometimes three propellers turned over slowly. As the Zeppelin patrolled up and down until nearly 6 a. m. Sunday, he said:

"Don't go in so close that they will hear us. There's no use in keeping people awake half the night."

Dr. Eckener announced we would not go on to Sao Paulo, which would bring us back too late to Rio to land and get away in time to be in Recife today.

SQUALLS BATTER CRAFT

Forgotten was the rough going of Saturday—the bumpiest day's flight we have had in the Graf since that day between Yuma, Ariz., and El Paso, along the international U. S.-Mexico boundary in the flight around the world.

Beginning with a terrific squall at 2 a. m. that carried the Graf up 150 feet at a clip like a rocket, we had a succession of local squalls with heavy wind and rain.

Steadily, sometimes as slow as 32 miles an hour and sometimes as high as 52, the Graf was driven by its faithful motors, and bored through the tropical weather.

The passengers did not seem to mind the shaking.

ECKENER WINS APOLOGY

Something like a "diplomatic incident" was threatened when Dr. Eckener received a wireless from the Rio authorities demanding an immediate decision as to whether he proposed landing at the Brazilian capital.

Dr. Eckener promptly answered that because of the rough weather and because there was no way of knowing exactly what sort of conditions would prevail at Rio, he declined to land.

That brought an apology and a flood of pleas to land, and at 6 a. m. we entered the harbor.

PLANES ESCORT ZEP

Airplanes came out and escorted us in to the city. For about an hour the Graf paraded over the city and around the bay.

Then Dr. Eckener proceeded to the Campo Affonso landing field where our short landing was made.

The Graf, after circling the city for the last time, passed out over the Atlantic at 9:29 a. m.

UTILITIES JOBS 452 MILLIONS

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP.)—The value of new contracts let for public work and utilities construction in the United States during the first four months of the present year as $452,910,000 was announced by Secretary of Commerce Lamont.

He said that total was 30 per cent in excess of similar contracts let during the same period last year. The record was declared to be a significant and highly gratifying advance, indicating effective co-operation of all concerned in President Hoover's effort to stimulate general business.

The largest single item of the department's compilation was furnished by the road building program, the total expenditure on which for the first four months was indicated at $196,676,000 against $142,000,000 during the same period last year.

In other types of construction aside from road work, the greatest gain has been made this year in contract totals for lighting and park development, which are placed at 96 per cent more than last year. On water supply systems, the 1930 expenditure is running 66 per cent above last year; on bridges, 42 per cent, and on railroad construction 16 per cent. Contracts awarded for hospitals and institutions this year are 121 per cent in excess of last year, though the contracts for public buildings are 11 per cent less in value.

MEXICAN QUOTA PLAN OPPOSED

MEXICO CITY, May 26.—(AP.)—The executive committee of the American Chamber of Commerce yesterday made public the text of a telegram sent to President Hoover describing the Harris bill to put Mexican immigration under Quota laws as "most unwise at this time."

The telegram said:

"In view of the present cordial and friendly relations between the United States and Mexico, it is the opinion of the executive committee of the American Chamber of Commerce of Mexico City, endeavoring to represent American business interests and to further these friendly relations, that the proposed legislation restricting immigration from Mexico would not do actual good and would be most unwise at this time.

"Nothing should be done to affect adversely this amicable feeling, and such legislation will also be inimical to trade and the friendly relations of the two countries."

The committee thought that "to pick out Mexico as the only country of the western world for putting into effect such destrictions will inevitably produce most unsatisfactory results.

Again! Chiffon Frocks With Velvet Wraps

More of Those Smart Costumes For Women's Demi-Formal Wear

$25

We had to issue a "sold out" announcement early in the day when we held a sale of these ensembles last week. And now we are glad to be able to give notice that more of them have arrived for tomorrow's selling.

Women certainly appreciate the fact that at this moderate price they can get a sleeveless printed chiffon frock for late afternoon wear and twilight dining, and with it a fashionable short velvet evening wrap that can be worn with dance frocks, too.

There are five models in sleeveless frocks, with flounced or flared skirts, some with capelets. And five models in the coats, including cutaway and softly draped effects, in black or in colors to match the frocks. Sizes 34 to 44.

Serve your next bridge luncheon on one or more of these ebony or colored glass sets. It's as thrilling as holding a perfect no-trump hand to get sets of this quality and smartness at so low a price. The plates, sandwich tray and saucers are octagon-shaped. In ebony, green, rose and gold.

Rose or green glass plates divided so that a complete course may be served without extra dishes — serve everything from the kitchen. Splendid for Sunday night suppers. A set of eight may be used for bridge luncheons.

New Mesh-Knitted Sports Frocks

Here are frocks with the coolness of the sheerest cotton, but with the sportsy appearance of wool knitted garments. As a matter of fact, they are of a meshy, lustrous fabric composed of rayon-with-cotton—you've seen it before in considerably higher-priced dresses.

There are youthful, one-piece models with short sleeves, in misses' sizes. One is in simple shirtwaist effect, the others are subtly flared models with tricky necklines and scalloped front closings.

Note, especially, these features:

1—Swivel-type handle—lies flat on the bag—will not break nor pull loose.

2—Strong lock. Key is numbered so that you may order another if it is lost.

3—Top straps render this bag semi-telescopic, and add to its sturdiness.

4—Sewed corner guards—will stand a lot of rough usage.

It costs very little to have new tennis dresses, golf outfits or street ensembles if you make them yourself of these new sports silks. Four yards, at most, is all you'll need—and you'll have enough change from a ten-dollar bill to buy the beret to wear with the dress!

Some of the silks you may select are Shantung and Rajah—in plain colors. Yo-San, a smoother silk, in plain colors and prints. Trushan, a new sports silk, in a lovely range of colors. Tweed Shantung, a color-flecked shantung.

PASTOR HELD IN BIGAMY ON JOB

BOSCOBDEL, Wis., May 26.—(AP.)—The Rev. Fred E. Osborne, pastor of the Christian Church, was freed under $2,000 bond pending a preliminary hearing on charges of bigamy by the state board of his church.

Osborne is accused of marrying Mrs. Minthe Taylor at Mt. Hope, Wis., on May 19, 1929, without having been legally separated from Mrs. Nina Roots Osborne, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Arraigned Saturday, the pastor won a postponement of his hearing so that he might complete a series of revival meetings. He continued his duties as pastor yesterday.

Boy Burns School To Get Term in Reformatory

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., May 26.—(AP.)—Floyd Barker, 15, who felt he needed disciplining so badly that he burned down the Stouts Run school house so he would be sent to a reform school, will realize his ambition.

Sheriff L. B. Snyder, of Wetzel County, said that Boyd would be taken to the Boys' Industrial School at Pruntytown and must remain there until he becomes of age.

In a confession he wrote that he hoped, when released from Pruntytown, to join the Navy for a further period of self-disciplining "in order that I can make a man of myself."

QUITS AS HEAD OF UNIVERSITY

MOSCOW, Ida., May 26.—(AP.)—Dr. Frederick J. Kelly has resigned as president of the University of Idaho. He charged that the State Board of Education had "thwarted his scholastic, financial and educational policies," including the subordination of athletics.

After tendering his resignation, Dr. Kelly, at a meeting of members of the university faculty and representatives of students, charged the board with violating an agreement made when he consented to come to the university from the University of Minnesota, where he was dean of administration.

LINCOLN'S BOY SPY DIES

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP.)—Capt. Louis Allen Newcome of the Old Guard of the City of New York, author of "Lincoln's Boy Spy," in which he recounted his experiences as personal messenger of President Lincoln, died at his home yesterday at the age of 85 after a brief illness.

Born in Braintree, Mass., he enlisted in the Sixtieth Massachusetts Infantry at the outbreak of the Civil War as a drummer boy. He was entrusted with an important message for Lincoln and faithfully carried out the order to place it in the President's own hands. Impressed with the boy the President arranged for his transfer to the White House.

FUND FOR JOB INQUIRY GIVEN

CHICAGO, May 26.—(AP.)—The Julius Rosenwald Fund yesterday announced a $75,000 appropriation for a study of the causes of seasonal unemployment in the Philadelphia area and the development of means to regulate employment that may benefit the entire nation.

"It is hoped," President Edwin R. Embree, of the fund, said, "The study will make findings that will prevent sporadic fluctuations and make unemployment steady throughout the year. The experience of one large industrial district, where much work has already been done, will be to the advantage of other communities."

The study will require three years and will be carried out by the University of Pennsylvania's industrial research department under the direction of Prof. Joseph H. Willets. The bureau of regularization of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, the Federal Reserve Bank, Board of Education, State Department of Labor and Industry, charitable agencies, trade associations and unions and Swarthmore and Haverford colleges will co-operate.

MISSING JUDGE FOUND DEAD

OAKLAND, Cal., May 26.—(AP.)—The crushed body of Superior Judge Edward W. Engs was found yesterday in a stone quarry at Clifton Steer, near Broadway, Oakland, within a few blocks of his home. Coroner Grant Miller and Dr. N. N. Ashley, county autopsy surgeon, reported that the immediate cause of death was an internal hemorrhage of the lungs.

No evidence of foul play was discovered. Examination of a ledge at the quarry's crest disclosed a fragment of slippery bark, crushed as though by a foot.

HAPPENINGS IN HOLLYWOOD CHRONICLED ALONG WITH AMUSEMENT CHAT

Mr. Arlen Bemoans Lack Of Sea and Then Gets A Lot of It

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 26.

Richard Arlen will inhale his share of sea air, Dick was bemoaning that he was so busy riding horses and keeping late studio hours that he never had a moment to enjoy his new boat, the Joby R. Then he got a three-week holiday and together with Mrs. Arlen (Jobyna Ralston) hit the open waters aboard the new boat. Returning to the studio all set for his talky, "Lost Sea God" (or whatever 'twill be called), he discovered he would be leaving on location shortly. In a boat. And he'd stay on that boat, bigosh, outa sight of land (mebbe) for a week or two to come. A regular Ancient Mariner that Arlen lad

AH, THE SINEMA

Came time for Director John Cromwell to take the big collision scene in the new William Powell-Kay Francis flick. For the Defense." It was Miss Francis' histrionic duty to drive a black Packard touring car into a smash. Not a particularly pleasant assignment. But, and also nevertheless, the kumpny selected the street for the action. Lights. Line-up of cameras. Microphones. Sound truck. Et cetera. Kay climbed into the car, took the wheel, circled the block and sped into camera range. Bang! Zip went the cars' fenders. Miss Francis survived the shock all right. But the collision didn't register via the "mike" like a collision. Retakes were made. Several of them. Finally, Cromwell, discouraged, said:

"Once more, Kay. We'll shoot it this time without sound. If the action is all right we'll superimpose the sound later."

Kay obliged. But—

This time she lost control of the wheel, went carooming madly beyond range of the cameras, smashed into a little car that inadvertently rounded the corner. A terrific crash. Her car lunged to the curb, tottered, and came to a standstill, fortunately, not turning over.

The tragic part of it was that neither the crash nor this realistic action was registered! Ah, the cinema!

THE OLD ARMY GAME

Buffaloing the screen players is quite a lucrative way to earn a livelihood. If one can get away with it, and plenty "ones" seem to.

For a while there was a chap hereabouts who got the addresses of a number of players, called to see them at the studio or their home, showed them a suitcase full of choice perfumes, discussed cost with them. Finally said that as he needed the money, he would let the entire suitcase assortment go for $100.

It seemed a bargain. It was a bargain. Only, later, when the purchasers opened their "imported perfume bottles," they discovered the contents to be water!

This fake salesman had merely drenched the cork and neck of the bottles with the perfumes he purported to sell. He has never been found.

Another chap was a bootlegger. He offered cases of gin cheap—darn cheap. The victim was first invited to sample the gin. It tasted ekeh. So he took the case, plunking out hard cash for it. Came time to dig into it and every bottle excepting the one he had first sampled was filled with water! No comeback.

Lila Lee, on the Harris screen in "Double Cross Roads," is the inspiration to better life for a young crook.

SCREEN CROOK SEES FIELD OF DAISIES IN THE HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

It is daisy time in the Underworld—at least in that part of it that is depicted in "Double Cross Roads," new talkie in the Harris. The film is all about a crook who sees a field of daisies, meets a pretty country maid and goes in for a glorious reformation.

Before the happy and virtuous finale, however, our hero, the crook, finds that the strait and narrow, even in a rural setting, isn't such an easy road to stay on. Associates from his crookdom days come popping up one by one until quite a gang of them are on hand and they all go in for a terrific motor car chase and machine gun play near the last fadeout. Which is all quite exciting in its moviesque way.

The production is based on the novel, "Beyond Are the Daisies." It has Lila Lee and Robert Ames doing the hero and heroine gestures. Other players include Ned Sparks and Montagu Love.

Victor Graff is back on the stage in the master of ceremonies role. With him is Ralph Harrison's R. K. Olians, who go in for the Maine Stein Song and other tunes. Mr. Graff gets a pleasant welcome from audiences and sings "Old Man River" intelligently.

The Musicians' Club of Pittsburgh gave its annual recital of original music by local composers in the auditorium of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association last night. There was a most responsive audience, and the program was by far the most wisely chosen array of music ever offered at any of these manuscript concerts. The soloists also were above the average especially in the vocal group.

J. Fred Lissfelt

It was all pleasant music. Only at the end of the program came a suspicion of revolutionary harmonies. The insidious melody of the Volga Boatsong pervaded several compositions, the Mastersingers of Richard Wagner sneaked in here and there, and once, even the Waters of Minnetonka claimed a victim.

Flora Thomson Greene offered two trios for women's voices in very free declamatory style, breaking away from any set forms and making very individual effects. W. K. Steiner played three works, which echoed his admiration of Schumann. Nellie Risher Roberts goes to the American Indian for her texts in two violin pieces and to the Gypsies for the third.

Marianne Genet has a strong sense of the melodic, writes well for the voice, and is now beginning to color her works with more varied hues. William Wentzel is decidedly one of our most gifted song writers and gave four new lyrics. In the contemplative "Reverie" and "A Petal Falls" he was in his best mood; but the happier "Philanderer" and "Lost" this writer still showed his highly developed artistic sense of knowing when to close his song.

A new name among local composers is Raymond C. Miller, who showed the most promising talent of the evening. His works for piano and violin or viola have more distinction and display a richer imagination for graceful melody and form than most young writers. The madrigal, written in the old English style, for solo voice and six wind instruments is the first local demonstration of the modern tendencies away from large group playing or singing.

The Pillion String Ensemble played a canon and caprice of Henrietta Bodycombe, clearly conceived works built upon a dignified and a very witty theme, a scherzo of Gwen Treasure, strongly reminiscent of Mendelssohn, and an andante of Llewellyn Davies, full of modernistic soarings.

The soloists were sopranos: Letha Rankin, Cecelia Namara, Sue Seiger; contraltos: Jean Newman, Viola Byrgerson; tenor, Eugene Baldridge, and baritone, Cass Whitney; Ruth Bowers Gibson, Rose Aiello, David Fisher, violinists; wind ensemble: John Rocereto, Carl Fielder, Carl Britenbach, Louis Nusser, Theodore Ruta, August Fischer, Domenico Caputo. With the exception of Marion Bollinger, the composer played accompaniments and W. K. Steiner the only piano soloist.

MINISTER RAPS NEGRO VOTERS

Negroes of the Hill district were criticized by the Rev. A. V. B. Hightower, in a sermon in Trinity A. M. E. Church last night, for permitting a second Negro to be entered in the race for nomination for the Legislature in the First District, comprising the Hill section. The Rev. Mr. Hightower was a backer of Walter E. Tucker, a Negro, who was opposed by T. B. Hamilton, a Negro attorney, who was slated with Joseph C. Marcus, both of whom received support of the Republican organization. Marcus and Joseph R. Lynch were nominated, Tucker being 200 votes behind Marcus. The minister said that had Hamilton remained out of the fight Tucker would have been nominated, giving the Negro race representation in the Legislature.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

THE BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL party on KDKA at 8:30 is the biggest attraction on the radio tonight. Babe Ruth, Eddie Collins, Walter Johnson and Dazzy Vance will be guests.

Featuring the aria "Questo o Quella," sung by the Duke in Verdi's "Rigoletto," Alfio Tedesco, noted Italian tenor of the Metropolitan, will sing for General Motors on WCAE at 9:30. He will do also "Siciliana" from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Mappari Tutt' Amor" the famous aria in which Lionel pours out in song his love for Martha, the heroine of the opera of that name by Friedrich von Flotow.

A pre-Memorial Day concert is carded for the Fleet Wing Band, KDKA at 8.

"T42" is the novel way Walter Myers orders beverage for himself and wife when they visit a "write-it-yourself" restaurant.

Seldom does an Army cook have the pleasure of introducing the colonel of his outfit but exactly this thing happened in WCAE studios yesterday when Ford Miller brought Col. W. R. Dunlap to the microphone. Miller peeled potatoes, sawed bread and other things when Col. Dunlap commanded the One Hundred-and-Eleventh Infantry.

Bernie Cummins, leader of the New Yorker Hotel Orchestra heard over WJZ, has gone and done it. He'll be in Pittsburgh shortly with Mrs. Cummins, formerly Katherine Mahoney.

The "why" boys of Pitt had announcers and operators on the run at WCAE Saturday when they assumed temporary management of the station.

Airplane catalogs arriving in great abundance at WCAE these days are for Fred Thomas, operator.

T. V. N.—The Breakfast Brigade is a WJAS feature every morning at 8 o'clock featuring a 40-piece band, a choir of 225 voices, Billy Sunday, Paul Rader, Homer Rodeheaver and other evangelists. It's quite inspiring.

A "Beauty Shampoo" in 10 Minutes

Quickly, Easily, at a few cents cost, you can have a Real "Beauty Shampoo" that will give Your Hair a Loveliness, quite unobtainable by Ordinary Washing.

YOU CAN SAVE TIME, expense and inconvenience, by adopting this simple method of "beauty shampooing" which gives truly professional results at home.

The beauty of your hair, its sparkle . . . its glow and lustre . . . depends, almost entirely, upon the way you shampoo it.

A thin, oily film, or coating, is constantly forming on the hair. If allowed to remain, it catches the dust and dirt—hides the life and lustre—and the hair then becomes dull and unattractive.

Only thorough shampooing will . . . remove this film . . . and let the sparkle, and rich, natural . . . color tones . . . of the hair show.

Ordinary washing fails to satisfactorily remove this film, because—it does not clean the hair properly.

Besides—the hair cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali, in ordinary soaps, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why women, by the thousands, who value beautiful hair, are using Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. It cleanses so thoroughly; is so mild and so pure, that it cannot possibly injure, no matter how often you use it.

You will notice the difference in the appearance of your hair the very first time you use Mulsified, for it will feel so delightfully clean, and be so soft, silky, and fresh-looking.

Try a Mulsified "Beauty Shampoo" and just see how quickly it is done. See how easy your hair is to manage, and how lovely and alluring it will look. See it sparkle—with new life, glow and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store, or toilet goods counter, . . . anywhere in the world.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a glass or pitcher with a little warm water added, makes an abundance of . . . soft, rich, creamy lather . . . which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing with it every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Have $9,000,000 Insurance; Never See a Premium Bill

Pittsburghers Find Easy Way to Pay For Insurance.

PUT IT ON BUDGET BASIS

More Convenient and The Cost Is Less In End.

Down at The Colonial Trust Company we have a big ledger in which are the names of hundreds of people. Those people carry about $9,000,000 worth of insurance on their lives . . . and yet not one of them ever sees a bill for that insurance. Not one of them ever gets a premium notice. Not one of them ever finds his or her financial affairs disrupted by the arrival of some forgotten premium bill.

Those customers have wisely rid themselves of all the inconveniences of paying for insurance.

Colonial Pays Premiums.

The Colonial receives their premium notices direct from the insurance companies. The Colonial pays the premiums. The Colonial receives and files the receipts. The Colonial does whatever has to be done about the dividends.

All those men and women ever have to do about their insurance is to make a deposit once a month at The Colonial, just as if they were making a monthly deposit in a savings account.

In many cases, they are actually paying less for their insurance now than they were before, for The Colonial usually pays the annual premium rate, which is always lower than the quarterly or semi-annual premium.

No Charge for Service.

This service costs nothing. In fact, The Colonial really pays those customers for the privilege, because interest is paid on the monthly deposits.

This plan is called The Colonial Trust Insurance Payment Plan. It is designed for all men and women who have $10,000 or more of life insurance. If you have difficulty paying your insurance premiums . . . if they seem to come unexpectedly and all at once . . . if they come at inconvenient times . . . The Colonial will be glad to have you use this plan. Even if you are not already a customer of The Colonial, the plan is open to you.

A folder describing it will be sent to you if you will write to The Colonial Trust Company, 414 Wood Street, Pittsburgh.

GIVE COLONIAL YOUR ADDRESS

Many Companies Should Be Notified When You Move.

Have you sent your new address to your bank? This is important, for it may be necessary for your bank to reach you quickly.

Have you changed your fire insurance to cover your new home? Have you notified your life insurance companies? Have you changed your address on the records of the department stores and other places where you have charge accounts? Have you given your forwarding address to the postoffice?

Tune In On The Colonial's Radio Programs

RADIO TELLS TRAGIC FATE OF SISTERS

Insurance Is Their Support But They Outlive It.

AN AVOIDABLE TRAGEDY

At the suggestion of the head of a large insurance agency, The Colonial Banker, radio representative of the Colonial Trust Company, recently told the story of a famous lawyer of early Pittsburgh and how his plans for the care of his two unmarried sisters went awry after his death. It illustrates the dangers that are encountered in any hard-and-fast plan for distribution of insurance moneys.

Brother Leaves Fortune.

The story as told by The Banker was as follows:

"When this old lawyer died he left his sisters a moderate fortune. Everything seemed safe. But the money had to be invested, and in the end it was not done very wisely. This is no reflection on those sisters nor on the ability of women in general to handle money. Women as a rule handle money better than men. If you don't believe it, ask almost any man how much money he saved before he was married. But handling large quantities of money requires special training, and these two women had never had that training. So, in time, the money was lost.

"But the old lawyer had foreseen that possibility, and had left a quantity of insurance. It was to be paid as income. Each sister was to get $1,000 a year for 20 years.

"Unfortunately both sisters outlived the 20 years, and were left without income at an age when they needed it most. No one ever imagined that they would have to support themselves and they had never been trained for anything like that. The insurance man who handled the case told me that the last time he heard of them one sister had completely disappeared and the other was scrubbing at nights in a downtown office building.

Trust Would Have Helped.

"My insurance friend said: 'If that insurance had been left in an insurance trust, the trust company could have sounded a note of warning long before the 20 payments were gone, and those sisters could have lived within their means.'

"If you would like to know what an Insurance Trust is and how it could serve you, write for The Colonial's splendid booklet on Insurance Trusts, which explains it in detail. Address The Colonial Trust Company, 414 Wood street.

You Wouldn't Look for Music From This, Would You?

This looks like some electric generating station, yet it is the spot from which music goes into millions of homes all over North America. It is the control room in the KDKA studio in the William Penn Hotel. From this complicated-looking affair the two weekly radio broadcasts of The Colonial Trust Company are sent out over the air.

On the right in the picture is the "booster panel" which picks up the music and the conversation from the studios below, "boosts" it, and transmits it out to the broadcasting station. The window in the rear looks down into Studio A and a similar window in the wall to the left overlooks Studio B. Through these windows, the men in the control room switch the programs from one studio to another and control such things as volume and clarity.

If Two Men Saved $5,000 Each, One Could Get $390 Interest, And the Other $1,350

Years of Small Deposits Prove Much Better Than Larger Savings Over A Shorter Period.

Director

EUGENE S. REILLY.

Mr. Reilly, a prominent figure in the Pittsburgh real estate field, is a member of the board of directors of The Colonial Trust Company. Mr. Reilly succeeded his father on The Colonial's board, and there has been a member of the Reilly family in The Colonial directorate almost from the beginning of the bank's history.

Mr. Reilly is president of the Eugene S. Reilly Company, a member of the board of governors and a former president of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, vice-president and a director of the Washington Real Estate Company and the Washington Trust Company; a director of the Freehold Real Estate Company; president and a director of the Eastern Fuel Company; and of the Georges Creek Coal Mining Company; a member of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange; and a director in the Harris Amusement Company.

Mr. Reilly's father, John C. Reilly, was a pioneer in the transportation business in Pittsburgh, having helped to organize the street railways system.

The great difference between the amount of money a person has to deposit in a savings account to reach a certain objective over a short period of time as against a long period is pointed out by J. C. Chaplin, President of The Colonial Trust Company. Mr. Chaplin said that many people do not appreciate the great cumulative effect of compound interest in savings.

Mr. Chaplin said: "We frequently hear people say: 'I'll save money later on. I'll be making more then. I'll put in a greater amount each time, and I'll make up lost time.' This all seems very logical, but the thing that is overlooked in a plan like this is that the depositor not only has to make up his own deposits but he also has to make up for the interest he has lost. He gets so much less help from interest in a short-time saving period."

For example, if a person set out to save $5,000 in a savings account over a period of 15 years, it would take about $20.50 a month to do it. At the end of 15 years, the account would contain $5,047.94 . . . and $1,317.94 of it would be the interest the bank had added. The interest in that case amounts to more than 26%.

But if that person set out to save $5,000 in four years, the interest would be only about $390, or less than eight per cent of the total.

If a person saved $10,000 in regular deposits over a period of 15 years, more than $2,700 of the total would be interest the bank added; if that $10,000 was saved in regular deposits over five years only about $365 would be interest.

If $5,000 were saved over five years, about $100 of the total would be the interest, whereas if the same total were saved in one year there would be only about $20 of interest to help out.

If $7,500 is saved at regular intervals over a 15-year period, there will be $2,000 of interest in it, while if it is deposited in larger sums in four years, the interest will be only $585.

Recent figures show that the savings banks of the country paid more than $995,000,000 of interest on their savings deposits in 1929.

Because they do not get an actual check for this interest (the interest being automatically entered in the accounts) many people do not realize how well and how steadily their savings accounts pay them.

The Colonial Trust Company has an interesting little booklet called "How Much Do You Want?" which gives your exact figures on how much money you have to deposit each week or each month to save any amount from $100 to $10,000 in any given period of time. Send for a copy of it and look over the facts it gives you about the part which interest plays in the building up of any fund you want.

These figures show how much easier it is to save money in small amounts over long periods rather than in large amounts over short ones.

HOW CLIENT SAVED $2,000

Deposits of $25.00 Monthly Accumulate $235 in Interest.

One customer at The Colonial has been making a practice of depositing here a total of $25.00 each month. In six years those deposits have grown to $2,035.22.

Of this total only $1,800 has been deposited by the customer. The balance of $235.22 has been added to the fund by The Colonial as interest.

STUDENTS HEAR DR. MACARTNEY

WOOSTER, O., May 26.—Personal liberty is faith and obedience to the standards of right and wrong, and not self-indulgence, the Rev. Clarence Edward Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburgh, yesterday told students of Wooster College. He said in part:

"We hear a great deal about 'personal liberty,' by which, it seems, is meant the liberty to guzzle rum, regardless of the welfare of man. True liberty does not consist in doing what we please and in going where we please. It consists in obedience to the higher things in life.

"There is a tendency today, especially in educational centers, to minimize or discount faith as a weapon in life's warfare. But the believing man has ever been the mightiest factor in the building of the kingdom of Heaven upon earth."

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

Chickie's Presence Prompts Mother's Recovery

CHAPTER XCV.

The low chair by Jennie's bed became a sanctuary. Chickie's spirit knelt there. Holding fast to Jennie's wasted hand, she whispered in the dark and the silence, sending out wistful, pathetic prayers as though God were listening, leaning down to hear—

And if life had come then with brimming arms, Chickie would have turned away. She would have begged: "Oh, Life, forget me! Let me be. Give me nothing, nothing ever but this. To stay on here—"

Once praying so, she was suddenly back on the river road, stumbling through naked oaks, and the baby lay cold against her breast. She murmured brokenly not knowing. Jennie stirred—after a moment asked vaguely: "Chickie, are you crying?"

"Oh, no mother. Why should I cry?"

But tears were hot on her cheeks; her heart a twisted, aching thing. She fancied the baby cradled in Jennie's arms; fancied that Jennie smiled and touched its hair.

Something cold touched her neck. Warm hands rubbed hers. Martha Blake stooped above her. Chickie sat up, too frightened to speak. She caught Martha's sleeve in bewilderment. Martha smiled and said: "Chickie, fainting! Now you get to bed, Miss! And don't get up till I call you in the morning. Jennie's all right!"

"She needs me!"

Jennie Improves

"Then save your strength. Why, you're as white and pinched. You can't overdo yourself like this. Jonathan and I can manage."

Martha brought her a glass of warm milk. Chickie thought her eyes were searching. She wondered if she had spoken in her dream. Oh—it was bitter, having such pictures in her mind—sitting on that mound of earth, the dead baby on her knees and she blowing the pitiful breath in its mouth.

Yet she was grateful for the suspense and the tightness of these watching days—even glad that Jennie lay so quiet, needing her. It gave her strength, gave her calm. She could even smile when Mary came. For now her fight was done, all stilled the song and tumult.

Jennie would be better soon, be rosy and plump again. Sometimes, hearing the short, gaspy breath, seeing the nostrils almost transparent now and dilating, she grew afraid. She stared at her mother's thin, drawn lips.

"Why is she still so weak?" she asked the doctor.

"Weak? My dear girl, be thankful. It's well you came when you did. You did what I couldn't—you gave her the will to live."

Jimmy Visits

It was a blessing for both of them—the slow convalescence. It brought them close. They had never been so near. Chickie combed her mother's hair, bathed her, tied ribbons to the long sleeves of her nightgowns.

Jennie gave her looks that tore the heart, they were so full of faith, so pierced with love. Once she said: "Chickie, I didn't know you cared so much"——

"Oh, mother—but now? Why, did you really think I liked being away? I all but died being held down there in those awful mountains. It was pretty terrible, Jennie—and Jonathan yelling for me to come, and no way to get here quicker. It was, all right!"

Jennie gathered these words like precious jewels. She had them in her thoughts. They were radiant there.

One day—one of those young, vibrant days that sometimes come in February, come lilting of an early spring, Martha said: "We must take her out for a while. It will do her a world of good. Jimmy is coming . . . we'll take her for a little ride."

Chickie said: "Oh—yes——" The blood flew wildly to her face. "I won't go Martha, dear. I'll stay home and have everything warm when you get back."

"Nonsense! You need a little change yourself—Get on your things now. I'll help Jennie."

Chickie went into her room, seized with an overpowering wish to fling herself on the bed and cry and cry.

Then she heard the bell ring—a laugh in the hall—Jimmy's eager: "Get a move on there!"

Her face in the mirror was ashen, lines at her mouth. She marked the pale lips with rouge. But tears made tracks in the powder. She had to wipe it off and try again.

Jimmy carried her mother to the car. They propped her up with pillows. Jennie was excited and smiled. Martha sat with her. Chickie was in front with Jimmy.

Chickie Questioned

She stumbled getting in. He caught her elbow, saying with a mocking laugh: "Shall I carry you, too, sweetie? What's the matter, my darling? You're white as a ghost."

She turned her head: "Just tired. I've been up a lot."

Jimmy's face sobered. When the car was going swiftly he asked: "Chickie is it only lack of sleep?"

"What else would you have it, Jimmy, dear?"

"I heard about that, Chickie. Is that why you went away?"

Her breath stopped.

"Well, shouldn't I ask that, Chickie?"

"What do you mean? Yes—quick—ask it—what did you hear——"

"Well, I heard of his marriage."

"Oh—a long while ago——"

"Yes—say, look here Chickie, you're not going back up there to that fool farm stuff, are you?"

"No—they don't want me to——"

"I should say not! Chickie, how about running this car? Mother has the buck fever. You could take the old ladies out of an afternoon. Good for them—and for you—Well—"

"Oh—maybe——" She drew down low in the seat and turned her face, but not quickly enough. Jimmy saw the tears. He reached his hand over hers—pressed it.

Thinks of Child

She laughed: "Well—I thank thee, dear old Jimmy—that tear was for my lost looks. You notice them all gone to smash?

"I did not, Chickie—you're not grieving over that, are you?"

"Tish—I wished it so!"

She saw a ruddy color in his cheeks. He tossed the black hair free. "When will you take a lesson, Chickie? Tonight? Tomorrow?"

"When Jennie is better. I can't leave her now."

"You mean it, Chickie?"

"Yes—oh, I mean about the lessons—"

"I get you. Lessons will do."

That night Jennie held her hand. She asked tenderly: "Do you care for him, Chickie?"

Chickie didn't answer.

Jennie went on: "He loves you—ah, yes—"

"No, mother—he doesn't. Oh, he doesn't!"

Jennie wiped her eyes.

Chickie lay awake that night. The months that were passed returned. The child lay in her arms—it stirred and gave a little feeble cry.

She shut her ears. Oh, she wouldn't hear—she wouldn't go back.

The room filled with presences—Agnes Robbins, the doctor—the nurse. They confronted her. She felt suddenly powerless—suddenly beaten to the earth—

She couldn't fight them—

TYPEWRITER DREAMS

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

MID-SUMMER Day's Dream! Gentle and pastoral, sonnet-sweet, roaming-the-meadows-and-while-down-the-river-we-drift-on-forever sort of words! They don't go with typewriters, you think. The typewriter is one of the props of the great city landscape. And puts in its voice to swell the frenzy of noise in the play there that runs a continuous performance of every minute of every day.

But don't they, though? The typewriter may not harmonize with the shape and color of a dream, I know, but out of it dreams rise. Like many another unbeautiful part of modern life, unbeautiful save to the superfine eye of the machinery-age lover, we use it to produce the beauty that our souls must have.

Once a story of faintingly beautiful and exquisite quality was traced in an elegant hand in violet ink, with loops and whirls beneath the author's name, upon delicate paper, each letter just as tall as its blood brother, each word a poem in evenness and crystal clear to read. By and by the romancer, as he neared our times, either found his thoughts outstripping his hand or himself weary of accomplishment, for his handwriting became terrible! And the bird-tracks-on-a-snowy-morning pages of Horace Greeley and the other great men came in.

Then the weaver of beauty took to the typewriter like a baby duck to the pond. And dreams in words still rise from the artist hand, but by way of a complicated little black machine.

Other dreams besides the stories that intrigue you hover about the little engine that looks so alien to phantasy. Dreams from pretty modern heads.

Dreams of greatness. Hopes for goodness. Fancies afloat with money and gifts from heaven she never, or she thinks it "will be never," gets. Such as—LOVE, exterior decorations—oh, clothes are so thrilling now!—travel, a really long time to play. Oh, Joy, a JAUNT ON THE OCEAN WAVE! A real vacation—to Europe.

"I'll never, never get it!" moans Ona, the office girl. "Just a new hat and frock, and two weeks at a little round lake—that will be me!"

But right along with her own voice the voice of Hope babbles on—dreams take shape; and every boat to Europe, Glory, my dear, is full of wildly happy Onas, who never thought to sail the ocean blue for "a run across," either!

Save your money, and make it work for you, and you will be listening to the seething rush of the Atlantic below your porthole, too, some sweet day. Dressing for dinner—we'll hope. Saluting the Captain. Admiring the Surgeon's scarlet velvet and gold braid on his sleeve. Knowing that over-stuffed luxury of idly reading a gift novel on a sunny deck, whilst your little white teeth nibble over-stuffed fruit from an over-stuffed steamer basket!

Dream—and save.— —NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Correct Eating and Longevity

Nutritional failure and how to avoid it, is a subject to which more thought should be given.

DR. COPELAND

The fad of "stay thin" is still with us, but that there is danger in it cannot be denied. The danger to these over-zealous ones lies in the fact that many of them are headed for a short life instead of a long one. Staying thin means an undernourished body.

I know many a man who is so busy making money that he has no time for deliberate eating. People who rush through the day's work, those who snatch a doughnut and coffee for lunch time, not stopping for rest and real food, are not fooling the undertaker a particle.

Since the delicatessen diet has become so popular, many persons are beginning to wonder just how far we can go in being fed from brown paper bags. Let us be sensible about our eating.

It is a long road back to the home-cooked food of our mothers' and grandmothers' time. Those were the days when the house was filled with the appealing odors of long rows of newly baked bread, pies and cakes, twice a week. Home was a real place in those days!

Our forefathers were a sturdy race. They ate more of the homely but nourishing foods than we do today. They lived a more leisurely life, and life was not the strenuous pace that it is now. We should take more care of our diet and ways of living today.

There will never be a time when unsatisfactory substitutes can replace real honest foods for the average family. Good health and strength depend upon meat and potatoes, good bread and butter, fresh and wholesome cooked vegetables and fruits, and the milk products. You just cannot get along without these foods if you want to be well.

The average American diet often lacks in the necessary vitamins. It is a simple matter to secure abundance of vitamins if milk or the milk products, such as cheese, fruits and tomatoes, as well as the leafy green vegetables are taken in large enough amounts. When we speak of the leafy vegetables we mean such vegetables as spinach, lettuce, cauliflower and cabbage.

From infancy to old age, diet is the chief source of energy and growth. On the whole, people are becoming enlightened to the great dangers of nutritional failure. Our girls are being trained in both public and private schools more and more in the art of home-making and cooking.

Prosaic Clam Chowder Almost Leads to Betrayal

As I neared the kitchen, I caught that most attractive of culinary odors, the scent of frying bacon.

"Aw, now, the surprise is all spoiled," Katie lamented childishly, and Mrs. Ticer echoed her plaint.

"It is a shame," my neighbor said. "I thought I'd get it all ready so you wouldn't know a thing about it until Katie brought it to the table."

"One of your clam chowders!" I exclaimed as I identified the contents of the chopping bowl. "How perfectly wonderful! I haven't tasted one worthy of the name since the last one you made for us."

"I just remembered a few minutes ago," my neighbor said, "that Ticer brought in a mess of clams last night that I'd aimed to cook up for supper. So I sent him home for 'em and I'm fixing 'em all. I can take home enough for our supper. I thought you wouldn't mind my doin' of 'em all together."

"No, I don't 'mind.'" I told her with a little laugh which she echoed companionably. "And when you're ready to go home, let me know and I'll drive you there."

"There hain't a bit of use of your taking that trouble," she protested; but I shot a significant look at her across Katie's unconscious back.

"I have to go in that direction, anyway," I said, "on my way to the telegraph office. And I think we'd better drop in at The Larches to see what has to be done before Mrs. Brixton comes."

My neighbor opened her mouth, patently to remind me that we already had visited The Larches, but I gave a quick warning gesture toward Katie, and she uttered only a perfunctory "That suits me all right."

"Vot matter at dot Larches?" she asked. "Dot Jeem he no say vere he go, but shoost few meenits ago I hear Meester Spencer tell heem. Drive back to Larches und go careful so I no smash dees. Und your fader he haf boondle mit heem dot I teenk ees hees finger print beesness, hees camera und all dot stoof. Someting foony goin' on over here all right!"

I gave a little gasp at the fresh evidence of Katie's propensity for "snooping," as my mother-in-law terms her fondness for finding out things she is supposed not to know. Dicky dubs her "Riki-tikki-tavi" and and insists that she is a human incarnation of the immortalized Kipling mongoose, whose motto was "run and find out." I knew that my father's finger-printing apparatus was never in sight in his rooms. But, of course, my little maid always put his rooms in order, and she might have discovered them accidentally. I gave her the benefit of the doubt because I so much wished to do so, but I was shaken, nevertheless, with the feeling experienced before, that I fought to let my little maid go.

There was no time now, I told myself, to debate that question. I had but one desire, to get out of the room before she should see Mrs. Ticer's astonished eyes. My honest neighbor has anything but a poker face and she was looking at Katie in amazement, which would have convinced my quick-witted little maid not only of the truth of her surmise concerning The Larches, but also of something much more inflammatory to her feelings—that Mrs. Ticer was in my confidence concerning the "something foony," which Katie suspected.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A Man's Class Ring

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly tell me on which hand and on which finger is it proper for a college man to wear his class ring? L. J.

I can never be enthusiastic about any man's wearing any ring, but if he feels that his happiness depends on wearing a ring, he should wear it on his little finger.

Cream Soup Spoon

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have been thinking of adding soup spoons to my sterling silver. My dishes have cream soup bowls. The manufacturers of my silver do not make a cream soup spoon. What is the correct spoon for me to buy to use with the cream soup bowls?

2. Should one remove one's coat when having lunch in a restaurant? M. A.

1. Have you written directly to the manufacturer of your silver to inquire from them if they do now make the cream soup spoons? I recommend that you do this, and ask them, too, if they do not make these special and convenient spoons now, if they are planning to manufacture them. I know of several manufacturers of silver, both of sterling and plate, who are planning to manufacture these spoons soon, and perhaps yours is one of them. Your dealer may not know of this plan.

Until you are able to buy these special spoons, which are so convenient to use with your cream soup bowls, you might use your teaspoons or the spoons which are known as the "desert spoons." Either of these is more convenient to use with the cream soup cups than is the round bowl soup spoon.

2. Just as you wish. With an ensemble suit, however, many women consider it better not to remove the coat unless this is more comfortable.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

"Mother" Is No Antique

Have you seen the snapshots of those Gold Star Mothers, who have just sailed for the battlefields of France?

Smart, snappy-looking women, nearly all around 50 or younger, and wearing chic little hats and flowered frocks or natty tailleurs.

Twelve or thirteen years ago, when their boys sailed for "Over There," THESE women were not a day over forty—and some of them less than that.

Yet, do you remember—oh, DO you remember, Ben Bolt—the decrepit-looking pictures of the WAR MOTHER, that adorned all our magazine covers and flooded our newspapers, at that time?

Do you remember the terrible tear-jerkers, depicting palsied, wrinkled, white-haired, bespectacled old ladies of 70 or 80, bidding sturdy sons of 17 "good-bye"

Those "Mother" pictures ALWAYS made me writhe! They were pictures of the mother of 50 years ago, not of the mother of today. I can see them now, in retrospect, and recall how a beautiful war mother of 38 (and looking 27) nearly broke a looking glass hurling one of them across the room.

Every picture of a "War-Mother" was a picture of a great-grand-mother! If they had looked like THAT, they would all be in wheelchairs, today! They would have to be carried to France on stretchers, if they went at all. Most of them would be in homes for the aged.

No, dear heart! Mother doesn't wear her white hair parted in the middle, any more. She wears it smartly bobbed and permanently waved. The woman of 40 isn't a decrepit Old Dear, in a long bombazine skirt, with dewlaps under her chin. She is a svelte, athletic young person, in a rakish hat and a knitted sport suit and tennis shoes. And she doesn't carry a cane in her hand; she carries a golf-club and a vanity case. "Mother" is no flat tire—and no antique!

The war-mother of 1917 did not totter out to the front door to kiss her son "good-bye." She drove him to the station in the flivver. And, often she followed him across the sea, and drove an ambulance or nursed in a hospital.

A dozen or more years have elapsed, since then, and Mother is a bit riper and plumper—but she still has 20 years to the good on the "war-mother" pictures of her.

Dear old ladies of 80 and 90 are lovely and appealing—but they DON'T have sons of 19! Nope! They have greatgrandsons that age.

The mother of a boy of 19, in these days, is more likely to look like his sister than like his great-grandmother. Mother is no "knitted shawl" and no heirloom! She's the "last word" from Fifth Avenue—or Paris!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, May 27

While the sidereal operations for this day presage much activity and a generally progressive state of affairs, yet there may be some hazards through trickery or misrepresentation, accompanied by minor setbacks or delays. The mind should be able to offset these adverse conditions. Business relating to letters and publishing should be particularly successful and lively.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively year, with much progress, especially in all relating to publishing, promotion or commerce. But there is a menace of fraud or duplicity, and dealings with large or secret societies should be guarded with much precaution. The mental power will be under high stimulus to meet these menacing situations.

A child born on this day should be keen, alert, quick-witted and quite able to cope with the menacing conditions that may arise to offset much of its high attainments. It should do well in all literary or commercial activities.

The Talking Picture Story of

"CAUGHT SHORT"

Starring

MARIE DRESSLER
POLLY MORAN

Based on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Caught Short," Written by Willard Mack.

A Cosmopolitan Production.

While Mrs. Polly Smith puts her money in the stock market, her friendly enemy, Mrs. Marie Jones has been tucking hers away in an old slipper which she keeps in a wardrobe trunk in her boarding house.

"My slipper's gone," Mrs. Jones cries. "And Mrs. Smith was here last."

"Now, Ma," says her daughter Jenny, "be calm. One of the kids may be using the slipper for a sailboat in the bathtub."

William Smith was shocked to hear Marie mention his mother, Polly, in connection with the missing slipper bank.

"Why, Mrs. Jones," he says reproachfully.

"You get out and stay out," Mrs. Jones orders.

On his way to the door, William whispers to Jenny:

"I hope that's one old shoe they'll throw at us when we get married."

Mrs. Jones describes to Jenny the missing slipper which contained $3,800.

"Why I gave that slipper and its mate to Mrs. Smith this morning," Jenny exclaims.

"The slippers didn't fit," says Mrs. Smith, who has been told of the sad situation, "and I sold them to a junkman for fifteen cents."

"There's a junkman I'd love to meet," says Mrs. Jones.

The junkman brings back the slipper, because one of them lacks a buckle.

"I'll be glad to get you a buckle," says Mrs. Jones, taking the roll of $3,800 from one of the slippers, and peeling off a bill. "Got change for a fifty?"

"If I'd known what was in the slipper, I'd have change for more'n that," the junkman says sadly.

"I'll give you ten dollars in the morning," says the happy Mrs. Jones, "and you can spend it all for buckles."

KONJOLA BRINGS QUICK RELIEF IN LONG ILLNESS

"This New Medicine Is Godsend to Humanity," Says Grateful Pittsburgh Man.

Surprising as it seems, Konjola, the new and different medicine, is at the very peak of its powers in those stubborn and obstinate cases that have defied and resisted all other medicines and treatments tried.

MR. ARTHUR JOHNSON

Yet it is not to be wondered at, for Konjola is really 32 medicines skillfully blended into one. Of Konjola's 32 ingredients, 23 are the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. All who suffer and who would be well again are urged to get the facts about this medicine from the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is telling the wonderful story of this remarkable medicine, and passing out free samples and literature. Do not expect promises, claims or empty phrases, for Konjola is a medicine of deeds and achievements. Take, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mr. Arthur Johnson, 1123 Ingham street, Pittsburgh. Imagine his joy and surprise when he found in this new medicine just what he needed to end his suffering of twelve years. Just recently he said to the Konjola Man:

"This new medicine is a godsend to humanity. I say this after Konjola proved to me what it can do. I don't think anyone ever suffered more severely from stomach trouble than I did for twelve years. After every meal I was in distress from gas bloating and severe pains. For days at a time I could not eat or drink a thing without suffering afterward. I was very nervous and irritable, and had terrible headaches. I lay awake every night for hours before going to sleep. As the result of insufficient nourishment, and improper rest, I always felt exhausted and had to force myself to go to work.

"At first, I was skeptical about Konjola, as so many other medicines had brought only failure and disappointment. But the first two bottles of Konjola brought excellent results. Eagerly, I continued with the treatment. In six weeks I was like a man remade. I sleep so soundly that I had to buy an alarm clock to awaken me in the morning. I have a good appetite, and certainly enjoy eating foods I dared not taste before. My nerves have quieted, and headaches are gone. I give this indorsement to Konjola in the hope that others who suffer as I did will profit by my experience."

Thus Konjola works quickly, yet thoroughly. One does not have to wait long for results when Konjola is given a chance.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN at this store. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

RAIDERS TRAP 7 LEAPING TO ESCAPE

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM DFARR

An incident of the post-election developments has produced more chuckles among politicians than any other in years. It was 4 o'clock in the morning. Pinchot followers were keeping a vigilant eye on the return sheets in the Court House, fearing their candidate might be counted out of his victory.

Somebody had a brilliant, if mischievous, idea. It was put into execution with a dozen telephone calls which coaxed as many organization vote-getters out of their beds.

These organization men were told to report to such and such a room in the William Penn or the Henry to confer with Joe Armstrong, the big boss. Why? Because it looked like that independent Pinchot had too many votes and something had to be done right away.

Well, they reported, just before dawn. They knocked on this hotel door and on that one. Traveling salesmen who had never heard of Joe Armstrong were routed from their beds to answer the raps on their doors. Room clerks were called, explanations demanded.

And just as each of the organization men was beginning to feel that he had been victimized, a Pinchot follower would suddenly appear from nowhere, let loose a loud guffaw and vanish.

The kermess season is in full pirouette (!) and the mothers of talented and untalented children are beaming with satisfaction. Mothers look forward to the kermess season, fathers don't. Mother has the satisfaction of seeing her offspring tripping a graceful fantastic and perhaps yodeling a solo or two. Father pays the bills.

Preparing a child for her part in a kermess is a stupendous task, it seems to father. The ordinary youngster merely dances in the chorus, and this is without complication, but no mother is satisfied to see her daughter's light darkened under a bushel. So, in the case where little Elizabeth has talent there are these expenditures to anticipate: tickets to buy for all the relatives so that Elizabeth may not perform before empty seats; a costume for each solo number to which the talented child has been assigned; special instruction (which is not free) for the solo numbers. And that is why father would be just as satisfied if Elizabeth were not a budding Marilyn Miller.

There is little of the unexpected in the kermess, unless little Elizabeth trips in her big number and causes giggles from the front rows. The most interesting event of the kermess season to date was executed by Jack Huston, a kermess director, who was supposed to be a bachelor. At a Carrick kermess the other day Mr. Huston trotted out one of his students and made the startling first announcement. "Folks," he said, "I want you to meet the bride."

Squire Bill Bew has established himself as the Solomon of Brackenridge, although it is only fair to the Squire to point out that Brackenridge, a mere borough, does not offer the opportunities that Solomon's kingdom did. Squire Bew prides himself on the reunions he effects between estranged couples. He merely points to a picture of himself and wife which hangs above his judicial seat. This depicts Mrs. Bew standing threateningly over her husband, a menacing rolling pin in her hand. And the Squire advises all wives to treat their husbands thusly, although he does not point out that this picture was snapped at a happy picnic.

Will Rogers Says:

Beverly Hills, Cal., May 26.

Say, did you read the speeches of those high school kids in that final debating in Washington? Sounded like the only first-class oratory that had been pulled in Washington in years. Then they give 'em an unprepared subject to talk on, and they were all marvelous. We got to quit knocking these young folks. They may be raising Cain, but by golly, they are smart.

A young girl, second cousin of mine from Muskogee, Okla., was given the subject "Habeas Corpus" to speak on right then. Why, half of us don't know if it's a disease, or a new tooth paste, or a radio announcer's real name. Yours,

'HONEYMOONER' FACES OHIO CHARGES

Kirk Admits Missing Bride Story Is False—Accused As Bad Check Passer

R. C. Kirk, self-styled honeymooner, arrested in Turtle Creek after asking police to hunt for his bride of five weeks, was taken to Warren, O., early today. Kirk waived extradition and was returned to the Ohio city in custody of two police officers from that place.

Kirk, Turtle Creek police say, admitted that his story was false, and confessed to passing worthless checks in Warren, O., and Franklin, Pa., and to jumping a board bill in Erie.

A search was instituted by state police and McKeesport, East Pittsburgh and Irwin authorities after Kirk told Police Chief W. J. Whalen and Capt. Joseph Sauter, of Turtle Creek, that his car had broken down, and that when he went for help, his bride disappeared.

He had claimed he was a son of G. C. Kirk, of the Carnation Milk Company, Carnation, Wash., and that he and his wife, Geraldine Mallery, and been students in the University of Washington.

GIRL UNAFRAID

By GLADYS JOHNSON

Ardeth Remains Busy and Reduces Debt to Tom

CHAPTER XLI.

The shop was a quiet little world, shutting her in here with forgetfulness.

From the first it prospered under her management. If she lost a few regular attendants who had haunted the smokerie —Cyril Underhill among them—they were of the type who had rarely patronized the outer shop as well. Their number was more than made up by new patrons who had stayed away because of the smokerie. Among these, was Carolyn Forsythe, Tom's sister.

Mrs. Forsythe had not arrived without an inner struggle. She had listened with discretion to Tom's rhapsodies, and with a great deal of mental reservation. In her secret heart she was convinced that her beloved brother was being taken in by some designing shop girl.

But on her first visit to The Caprice, she capitulated. From being skeptical she swung over to Tom's side and became his most ardent supporter. She was a little woman and amazingly like her brother, with Tom's kindly brown eyes; plump where he was stocky. A little fluttery in manners perhaps, but kind and well-intentioned on the whole.

She insisted that Ardeth come down to visit at the Forsythe cabin in the Santa Cruz Mountains over the week end. She sent Tom into the shop at the end of the day with strict orders to bring Ardeth home for dinner. She vied with Mary Eastwood in loyal patronage of the little store.

Girl Again

Ardeth Enjoys Herself at Mountain Place

Ardeth found it pleasant to leave the shop Saturday evenings and accompanied Tom down to the summer cabin of the Forsythes. The city dropping behind, the ocean on their right, rolling in under the red light of a late sunset. Plunging into the blue twilight of the mountains, redwoods and evergreens standing like stiff sentinels either side of the highway, velvet black silhouettes against a star crowded sky. The little rustic cabin in the redwood grove. The door flung open at the sound of their arrival and the two lively Forsythe youngsters flinging themselves upon Ardeth before she could step out of the car.

Pleasant dinners at a table drawn before the fireplace. Tom's adoring eyes devouring Ardeth's face in the rosy light.

Waking to the early twittering of birds, the smell of evergreens, seeing the first golden bars of the sun trembling through the window.

It carried her out of herself. Swimming. Dancing. Playing wild games with Tom and Len Forsythe and the shrieking children she became a girl again, as laughing and breathless as when she had played hide-and-seek with Neil in that childhood which seemed almost mythical now.

Hurt Again

Hears That Ken Has Become Father

The long ride home up the dark highway Sunday night pleasantly tired.

But some how comforting to come back to the quiet room behind the dark little shop and settle into the place which was really her own. Peace . . . a sort of tired peace here. Life could not reach her here. Life had hurt her and passed on. If she was very quiet it might forget her . . . might never hurt her again.

But Ardeth found she could still be hurt . . . on the day she learned of the birth of Cecile's son.

Phyllis Hawkins it was who told her as she sat before a mirror idly trying the effect of amber eardrops versus jade against her milky skin.

"I was in the same hospital having my tonsils out—she spoke in her clear babyish voice with its odd suggestion of crystal hardness. "My nurse gave me all the dirt. Disposition! My dear, Cecile Gleason could give pointers to a lady scorpion! How Ken stands it is more than I can imagine, poor lamb! You'd think Cecile was the only one ever had a child! The nurse said she pretty nearly killed the poor little brat from the first—dancing and raising whoopee till all hours, so that boy never had a fair start. You knew it was a boy, didn't you?"

Ardeth turned quickly away on the pretext of finding more eardrops.

A son . . . Ken had a son.

That night she broke an engagement to go to Mary Eastwood's and she lay in the back room listening to the rain drumming on the window. Her heart was a wild rebellious thing beating against the bars. Cecile . . . the mother of Ken's son. Suppose the dead hands of an old woman had not wilfully tangled the skeins of their lives. Ah . . . don't think of that! Madness lay that way . . .

And life went on, a thing of days and weeks, of smiles and soft words . . . Busy days. Nights when she read until the first light strained into the single window of the back room. Technical works, travel, obscure volumes on art, borrowed from the nearest library.

Surprised

Comes Face to Face With Ken

The little shop flourished, enabled to hold its own among richer places by the personal touch. Ardeth had a way of adding value to the article she sold by endowing it with her own interest. Legends and ancient superstitions of the semi-precious stones, histories of the delicate French fans, the glamour of the Orient connected with the teaks and the jades. She was paying off the loan to Tom, each month the shop was more surely her own.

The busy holidays. The rains of Winter already forgotten in Spring flowers. Daffodils and cornflowers blooming again on the flowerstand at the corner.

In the sunshine of a quiet Sunday, Ardeth was dressing the one narrow window of the shop. Yesterday had been too busy for this necessary work and the window could not go over to next week.

A spring window . . . ran the girl's thoughts as she worked. Little in it, for it must be airy. Perhaps that new teakwood tabourette she had picked up yesterday, inlaid with mother-of-pearl. Then the black bowl of mirror-black, and a white marble nymph leaning luxuriently back against a thicket of daffodils and maiden-hair.

Her fingers went lovingly over the bowl and nymph as she placed it in the window. A gem she had picked up in an Italian importing place last week.

She went out in front to survey the result from the street. Nearly collided with someone watching from the pavement and murmured a quick apology.

Found the words frozen on her lips when she realized that she was facing Ken.

Greeden, the "sand hog" who was shot through the bed of the East River years ago, at work on the Gulf Refining Building, under construction. Work's progressing nicely.

SAND HOG LAYS LIFE TO BUBBLE

Dick Greeden, the "sand hog" who was shot through the bed of the East River and picked up on the surface back in 1905, is sandhogging on the Gulf Refining Company's building, now under construction.

Greeden is one of a few men who were ever blown through a bed of a river and remain alive to tell of it. His experience occurred during the construction of a tunnel for subway trains connecting Brooklyn with Manhatten.

It seems that while working below the river a leak broke in the roof of the workings. The air, under pressure, rushed for the leak, tearing a hole through the top and carrying Greeden with it. Once through the bed, the air formed a giant bubble in which Greeden rode to the surface.

Greeden believes bubbles are great things, is unmarried, has his home in Jersey City, has traveled to distant places on construction jobs and is glad he's a "sand hog."

POLICE FIND 2 WOMEN IN ROOM

South Side Gambling Drive Nets 10; Big Dice Table, Other Equipment Taken

Two women and a man awaited arrest by detectives who raided an alleged gambling house this morning, while seven male companions attempted, but failed, to escape by leaping from second floor windows to the street.

The raid was on an establishment in the second floor of a garage building at 2627 Carey way, South Side. Ten persons were arrested, one large dice table, three adding machines, and a complete set of books were confiscated. Detectives charge the place was a combination gambling house and "number joint."

Previous to the raid, detectives had surrounded the building. As the raiders hammered on the door, the seven men began leaping. Each was arrested as he struck the ground.

Thomas Goslin, 12 South Seventh street, alleged proprietor, May Smith, 422 South Main street, Peggy Warner, 1806 Brownsville road, were in the room when detectives entered. The women are said to have been clerks.

The three were held on a charge of conducting a gambling house, on an information sworn out by Chief County Detective George W. Murren. Frank Malone, Michael Ford, James O'Brien, Edward Weber made the arrest.

FLEEING ROBBER SUSPECT SHOT

Alfred Mayhue, 28, of 263 Braddock avenue, Turtle Creek, today was in the Braddock General Hospital with 14 buckshot wounds in the back, and John Davis, of the same address, and Peter McGann, of Braddock avenue, East Pittsburgh, were in the Turtle Creek lockup as a result of an unsuccessful robbery attempt yesterday, police said.

Children of Herbert Howell, 40, residing on a farm in the Monroeville road, Patton Township, were awakened by a commotion in the barn and notified their father who, arming himself, investigated.

McGann and Davis fled on foot, and Mayhue tried to escape in an automobile, according to Constable Frank Smelz, the arresting officer. Howell discharged two volleys at the car, it is said, some of the missles striking Mayhue in the back.

Howell reported the alleged attempted robbery to Turtle Creek police, who notified Smelz. McGann and Davis were arrested following the questioning of Mayhue at the hospital.

The men were arrested on a charge of breaking and entering a building.

Howell was not arrested.

Today's Question: Do you think the efforts of a woman philanthropist in attempting to aid and possibly free Irene Schroeder, the "Trigger Woman," should be commended or condemned?

HELEN SHEA, stenographer, South Side: Irene Schroeder's benefactor should be given a vote of thanks for her action in trying to get a lighter sentence for this woman. She is probably of a charitable nature and a fighter for the "under log." I think she should be praised.

Miss Shea

HELEN BARTH, Wilkes Barre Avenue: If Irene is to be helped, why doesn't some one help Glenn Dague, too? There's no reason why one should be aided and not the other! Personally, I think them both guilty and therefore, both should pay the penalty.

Miss Barth

E. MARGARETTA SMITH, telephone operator, City-County building: She should be condemned rather than praised. I don't believe that Irene Schroeder deserves any lighter sentence than she received. This woman, anyhow, has the courage of her convictions. I give her credit for it, too.

Miss Smith

BLANCHE LOVELAND, Mt. Oliver: This woman should be commended. She is about the only one with big enough heart to fight for someone who is down. In the first place I don't think Irene had the right upbringing. She should be given a lighter sentence. If her helper can do her any good, then I say go ahead.

Miss Loveland

MRS. D. B. HOWE, secretary, Ambassador Apartments: The law has taken its course. Irene Schroeder has been condemned to die. I don't believe that anyone should now interfere in trying to prevent the law to take its toll. This woman who is seeking to aid Irene should forget her idea and let her pay the penalty.

Mrs. Howe

GERTRUDE LEWIS, stenographer, Greenfield: I think that the money that might be spent on Irene could be put to a much better purpose than it will be in this case. Irene had been found guilty by a duly constituted court of law. Therefore she is entitled to pay the penalty.

Miss Lewis

JEAN PATOU BOWS TO AMERICAN GIRL ON DRESS STYLE

PARIS, May 26.—Jean Patou, head of the world famous couturier's establishment that bears his name, returned from America vanquished. He has recapitulated on his pronouncement that the skirt shall stay long.

It was the American girl who changed him, with her absolute refusal to lengthen her sports skirt. Her sports skirt stayed at a more "convenient" length, and Paris and Patou saw light.

Hereafter, sports ensembles here will feature the short skirt on the American fashion, rather than following earlier Parisian dictates for the longer skirt.

STYLE CONTEST FERRETS OUT OLD MODES

Trunks and Family Albums Yield Photos Which Owners Send to Marion Davies

HOLLYWOOD, May 26.—Plush-bound family albums and camel-backed trunks, stored in attics and cellars all over the United States, are being given their first airing in years since the beginning of the Marion Davies style contest.

The younger generation is getting to be really curious about those fashions of the gay nineties and the days of the Florodora Sextette.

The boys and girls want to know just what grandmother looked like in her bustle and stays, her voluminous skirts and her leg-o-mutton sleeves.

And, men and women, slightly older, are gazing at the old portraits and recalling those by-gone days and the bicycles built for two.

Many of those old photographs have been received at the new Pantages Theater in Hollywood, where Miss Davies' latest picture, "The Florodora Girl," will have its premiere on Wednesday, June 4.

Several relics of a past generation, in the shape of dresses, also have arrived by mail from various parts of the country.

The theater will be formally dedicated upon that day, with Eddie Cantor as master of ceremonies that evening at the opening of the picture.

Twice as many letters were received today as on any one day since the contest started.

FASHION DISGUISE

A woman's pride is her master; fashion her disguise.

MELITA I. BENTROTT,
1010 Emerson street, Palo Alto, Cal.

WOMEN LEAD WAY

Don't the men realize that it was the women who taught them to get away from the idea that they had to have heavy woolen underwear and go around all bundled up?

Why, we would have been a race of bleached, undernourished creatures by now if we had stayed dressed the way they did in the nineties.

Men are wearing lighter clothing now, thanks to the girls!

J. S. McGRATH,
U. S. Veterans Hospital, San Francisco, Cal.

POINTS TO ORIENT

I favor short skirts, low-necked dresses, low heels, bare limbs (I mean legs), and I approve of corsetless waists like that of the Venue de Milo.

Where do they get the notion about long skirts being "feminine"? Turkish and Chinese women wear trousers. So do other Oriental women—except those who have changed to American garb—and look at them! They lost their illusions about "feminine charm" and "modesty" as found in our garb.

MYRTLE L. VINCENT,
330 Bryant street, Palo Alto, Cal.

WILL NEVER GO BACK

I do not think the women of this day and age fit into the styles of long skirts and old-fashioned things.

Times have changed. The world is on wheels. How can women keep step in long, tight skirts and tight, long corsets?

The manner of this day will never go back 20 years. It will go on.

MRS. SUSIE E. PRESTON,
Dixon, Ill.

1930 STYLES BEST

In my estimation, the style, costume and dress of the girl of 1930 is by far the best, the neatest, the most economical and the most healthful as compared to the style of the 90s.

EDWIN H. PUCHTA,
509 Fourteenth avenue, Wauwatosa, Wis.

FAVORS SHORT HAIR

I would say that a lady with bobbed hair and short skirts is more proper. I am employed in a factory and have seven girls with long hair work on machines. One had her hair caught in the machine and was hurt quite badly. If she had had short hair this would not have happened. I also think with bobbed hair more of the beauty is shown in the hair than when it was long. In this I mean it is more free to lay natural than when it is pinned up with hairpins. With bobbed hair we can also fully appreciate the beautiful shape of some girls' heads which could not be seen with long hair.

ALBERT SCHNEIDER,

SEES MONKEY TRAIT

Gifted with all the instincts of the monkey tribe, he must have what the other apes have. In fact "what monkey sees, monkey does"—holds deadly true as clothes are concerned at least.

Prove it? I am safe in saying that if the Prince of Wales should happen to wear a Charley Chaplin suit of clothes at some state function, it would be all the rage.

MAN SLASHED WITH HATCHET IN BRAWL, FIVE ARRESTED

VICTIM FOUND WANDERING IN HIGHWAY

Alleged Beggar Jailed After Man Refusing Plea for Cash Is Cut With Knife

Five men are being held in the county jail today, one suffering a deep wound in the back, as a result of an alleged drinking brawl at Mine No. 3, near Castle Shannon, yesterday. According to Constable H. V. Schwenbrater, of Bethel Township, who arrested the men, Andrew Tombolato, one of his prisoners, had been struck in the back with a hatchet.

Tombolato, according to Schwenbrater, was found wandering in the roadway. Schwenbrater rushed him to a physician's office and then placed him under arrest. A short time later the officer arrested John Yashleck, Joseph Soss, Duffy Koswoski and William Colomba. County detectives will question the five today.

Tony Sprouk, 60, "no home," today was in custody for slashing a man who refused to give him money when he accosted him, police say, on Walker's Bridge last night.

The victim, Harry Kater, 43, of Straub's lane, was walking with Albert Weiblincer, 30, of 2144 Lowrie street, when Sprouk approached and begged money. When refused, police say he slashed Kater on the face. Twenty-five stitches were required at Allegheny General Hospital to close Kater's wound.

TRAFFIC CHECK STUDY BEGINS

Tabulation of the 150,000 origin and destination tags and the 300 report charts of the traffic volume conducted by 1,100 Boy Scouts in the Triangle last Thursday, was begun today, according to Donald M. The Liberty crosstown thoroughfare, street rerouting in the vicinity of the proposed new Pennsylvania passenger station; the North Side industrial highway, Liberty Tube congestion and the Saw Mill Run and Ohio River boulevards, are a few of the projects affecting the Golden Triangle's traffic problems McNeil says the count statistics may shed new light on.

As soon as the work of tabulating the results of the counts has been completed, the final figures and charts will be turned over to the street facilities and traffic flow sections of the Better Traffic Committee for their consideration. H. B. Kirkpatrick is chairman of the traffic flow section and John M. Rice of the street facilities sub-committee.

WORK SPEEDED ON RIVER ROAD

Construction on the $3,000,000 Allegheny River Boulevard, one of the largest road building projects ever undertaken by Allegheny County, is speedily going forward.

When completed the boulevard will connect Washington boulevard with Verona. It is at the Washington boulevard end of the highway that the most difficult part of the construction is being done.

Several steamshovels and crews of men are at work tunneling under the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the Brilliant Cutoff. When completed the new road will run under the tracks and follow the Allegheny River to Verona. Another difficult piece of construction is being done on the high hill to the right of the roadway near the railroad. # PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgher In Bridal Party

The nearer June approaches, the more bridal becomes the aspect of social life. Everyone is going to weddings, or being a bride or bridegroom, or a member of the bridal party. And then there are out-of-town weddings, too many of which have Pittsburgh folks in the bridal party.

I know of a Pittsburgh girl who'll be a bridesmaid at a wedding in the East on June 21. And she is Louise Evans, daughter of the Henry O. Evanses of South Negley avenue, and she is to be an attendant at the wedding of Priscilla Palmer, daughter of the George S. Palmers of the Freeport Colony in New London, Conn., and John Middleton Holmes, son of Mrs. George C. Holmes and the late Mr. Holmes, of Norfolk, Conn. The wedding is to take place in New London. Priscilla went to Farmington with Louise, you know. And I might add that Priscilla's fiance is a reserve officer in the United States Army.

Quite a few days before the wedding—on June 16—Louise is going to Princeton to attend commencement.

Woman's Club Closes Activities With Luncheon

The closing luncheon given Saturday by the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg was the largest the club has ever had. It was held at the Pittsburgh Country Club, with covers laid for 177 and with especially lovely decorations marking it. At the officers' table, which stood just in front of the ivy-decorated fireplace, the decorations were in the club colors, purple and white, and were carried out with iris pyrenthrum, peonies, narcissi and stock, while at the smaller tables and in various places about the big room were bouquets of pink and red peonies, iris and other spring flowers from Mrs. Charles D. Armstrong's gardens.

Mrs. O. G. Leichliter, the retiring president, greeted the guests and introduced Mary Jones Sherrill and Eeln Glen Campbell, who gave a most delightful program. With Mrs. John E. Nelson at the piano, Mrs. Campbell sang in a voice that is as sweetly beautiful as her own fair face. She chose for her three groups the waltz song from "Tom Jones," "Call of the Woods" and several Scotch songs, "Loch Lomond," "Annie Laurie," "My Ain Folk" and "Coming Through the Rye," all of which took on new beauty in Mrs. Campbell's native accent.

Mrs. Sherrill, as always, made a happy choice in her readings, giving Essex Dane's stirring playlet of the Russian Revolution, "The Wasp," a humorous monologue, Booth Tarkington's clever "Us" and an Irish dialect poem.

Miss Marie Maloney, a prominent member of the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club, is author of an interesting article in this month's issue of "The Independent Woman," official organ of the B. P. W. clubs. The article, which is captioned, "The Problem of the Personal Worker," is written from Miss Maloney's personal experiences in a Pittsburgh department store.

Local Author

Department store work, Miss Maloney points out, is an absorbing occupation for those who like work which challenges the best in him. A person who wants to have half holidays on Saturdays, short hours with little to do, should look elsewhere than in a department store, but for those who are conscientious and hard working, the opportunities are practically limitless.

The ability to handle people, to deal squarely with them is, she says, a trait of primary importance to the ideal personnel worker, a quality which may be defined as human understanding of the other fellow's position and the ability to work successfully and harmoniously along with associates and fellow workers. Something new and stimulating comes up with each day's problems and there is no opportunity to go stale on the job, Miss Maloney observes.

The annual luncheon of the Sheraden Monday Club was held at the Congress of Clubs Saturday. Miss Eva Moser had charge of the entertainment which included soprano solos by Miss Mabel Moser, accompanied by Miss Elsie Rimmel; piano solos by Miss Janet Sibray and songs (in costume) by Miss Janet Cameron and Mrs. A. Aucterlonie. Miss Mary Mitchell gave a travel talk on California and farcicals were given by Mrs. Floyd Beatty and Mrs. R. J. Ellis. The luncheon brought the club year to a close.

A PINK FLUSH PERVADES THE SARTORIAL HORIZON

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, MAY 26.—The pink flow that is reflected on the horizon of fashion will be welcomed with a flush of gratitude by the majority of women. For what more flattering and there than pink, kind shade is the lovely tone in especially this season's color symphony introduced into by the brilliant Jean Patou? All pink and especially pink combined with black or blue, seem to be a favorite hue here just now for day as well as for evening. Of course there are certain shades of pink that are rather insipid and others that have a tendency to impart a florid look to the wearer, but when the right shade is worn or cleverly combined with a darker hue, the result is really delightful. Blue, too is immensely liked here and at many evening affairs the deep blue of the gowns challenges the dark velvet mantle of the heavens.

WE SHOW a sketch of an afternoon frock by Patou developed in the lovely pink shade created by him as his contribution to our sartorial happiness. The frock is of crepe sokol and has proven itself to be an unusually successful model as its lines are so becoming and its detail so interesting. The bolero is banded with two inch wide appliqued piece and is trimmed with a multitude of fine pintucks. The oversleeves and skirt top are similary treated. Set-on bands placed vertically at the front of the skirt end in pleats. A large floppy hat of matching pink felt trimmed with dark blue ribbon—a popular color combination, by the way—is worn with this graceful frock.

PATOU ever a leader in his chosen field has created a graceful dinner frock of chiffon in a dark shade of blue not commonly associated with prandial events, and so attractive is this model that it would hardly surprise us to see many dark blue frocks at dinner tables this season. Details of the frock include a graceful and circular cape that is in one piece with the softly draped scarf attached at the front of the bodice and outlining the decolletage. The wide crush sash is tied in a soft bow at front. Circular godets starting from vertical set-in bands form a slightly flaring skirt. (Copyright, 1930, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Pores, Oily Skin Had Me Frantic

Try this New Hollywood Recipe for a Beautiful Skin

Out in Hollywood they have a wonderful recipe for a lotion that quickly reduces large pores, removes blackheads and makes the skin nice and smooth.

The very minute you pat it on the face it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt. It removes blackheads, closes the pores and makes the skin smooth, good-looking and youthfully fresh. You'll notice, too, that the skin is not oily or disfigured with perspiration that streaks make-up.

If you want a smooth, soft, beautiful skin free from large pores, blackheads, crow's feet and oiliness, just get 3 ounces of Orchard White from your druggist and mix it with the juice of 2 lemons. Then you have a full quarter-pint of the finest lotion you have ever used. Try it.

LONG HOME STAYS HELP TOP CLUBS

NOW COMES THE test that will determine whether the St. Louis Cardinals and the Washington Senators are made of real pennant stuff or have been standing out as the sensations of the major leagues thus far only because of favorable spring schedules that permitted them to play the great majority of their games on their own grounds. It is the test of competition away from home, one that either proves that a front-running ball team is all that it looks to be on paper or exposes it as a false alarm that is not to be feared in the long run.

Gabby Street

The Cards and Senators have earned their positions at the heads of their respective leagues by exceptional play. You can't take that away from them. The warriors of Gabby Street, who open a series here this afternoon, have won seven straight games up to today and have been defeated only once in their last 17 contests. They started the streak with a string of nine consecutive wins, the season's record in the big show. And Walter Johnson's American League leaders (by the way, Johnson and Street formed a famous battery for Washington in 1908-9-10-11, after an earlier run of eight successive wins), have captured 11 of their last 15 engagements.

UNCOMMON PERFORMANCES. THERE is no discounting that fact. They have not been approached by any other club in the main loops. But there is a possibility that both clubs may have been helped not a little by their schedules. Out of a total of 35 games decided up to date the Cards have played only nine away from home, against 26 in St. Louis and out of the same total number of engagements the Senators have played only six on foreign fields against 29 in Washington.

In a grand total of 70 games, therefore, the two pennant leaders have played away from home only 15 times, so it will be seen that they have not been thoroughly tested. They will have a different row to hoe from now on. Yesterday's game in Chicago was the first of a string of 25 straight that the Cards will have to play abroad, and starting today the Senators must play 23 of their next 24 engagements in the enemy's land. It's the road that tries a ball club, and unless it can win there it cannot be accepted as a real flag threat. Whether the Cards and Senators are equal to the contract remains to be seen.

CONSIDERING THE CRIPPLED state of the pitching staff, forcing Manager Ens to take a chance with a youngster who never had started a major league game, the Pirates did fairly well in getting an even break in the Cincinnati double-header yesterday.

Leon Chagnon

Though beaten in his first big-league start, Leon Chagnon acted like a real pitcher until he weakened toward the finish. This, in connection with the performance of Glenn Spencer in saving another game in a rescue role (Kremer's eighth failure to finish in 10 starts), offers the hope that the Buc skipper may be able to get better results out of his young hurlers than he has been getting out of some of the veterans.

WHEN THE REDS turned on the Rovers and copped the second half of yesterday's bargain they broke the longest losing streak of the season in the major circuits. Dan Howley's club had lost 10 games in succession. The closest approach to that slide this year was charged against the Braves, Red Sox and Tigers. Each of these clubs lost seven in a row, and the Phillies ran up a string of six. Cincinnati's victory was only the second scored over Pittsburgh this year in nine games played. Six of the Bucs' seven wins over the Reds came in succession.

IF THE PIRATES run true to their past spring form they may be expected to check the drive of the Cardinals in the three game series starting here today. They had not lost a game to the Redbirds up to today, beating the Missourians twice in St. Louis and twice at Forbes Field.

The Bucs have been the only Western club to stop the Cards. The latter have won six out of seven from Cincinnati, and their win in Chicago yesterday was their eighth over the Cubs in 12 meetings. Incidentally, that was the Bruins' tenth defeat in their last 14 games. The Giants, who started to skid about the same time as the league champions, have dropped 10 of their last 12.

THE SEASON'S LONGEST run of air-tight pitching was interrupted yesterday when the Athletics drove George Pipgras to cover

Sports Editor.

Two visiting near-middleweights do their stuff in the 10-round main bout in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tonight. They are Gorilla Jones, Negro, of Akron, and Vincent Forgione, Italian, of Philadelphia.

Gorilla Jones

Both are rugged mixers, with Gorilla the more famous of the two, as a result of his string of knockout conquests over many men of reputation.

It is the Bowl's second show. The arena was opened last Wednesday night with Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion, boxing Vic Burrone, of New York, and one week from tonight Willie Davies, of Charleroi, meets Black Bill, his Nemesis, in a "natural" return battle. Kid Chocolate, stablemate of Black Bill, will be in the latter's corner.

BOWL SIGNS BENNY BASS

Incidentally, announcement was made today by Apples Meyers, manager of the Bowl, that he has closed for the showing of Benny Bass, the world junior-lightweight champion, against Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, a favorite here, on the night of June 23. A certain succession of the 52 cards in a deck was agreed upon, then the cards were shuffled, and it was left to chance to turn them up in the original order. It took 2,246,028 dealings before he won his bet, and it took 20 years of the most exasperating labor to do it. A BOTTLE OF BEER INSURED FOR $25,000—This is the last bottle of the before-prohibition brew of Milwaukee. ## TWO ROOKIES FLASH MOUND BRILLIANCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The sweet uses of adversity, spoken of by Shakespeare, may be proved in the case of Jewel Ens, director of the Pirates. Can it be that the fair-haired pilot of the Buccos, in his plight, has discovered a couple of pitching nuggets in the rough in Leon Chagnon and Glenn Spencer?

Yesterday in Cincinnati Chagnon worked an entire game as he started his first contest in the major league. Working nine rounds in these days of the "rabbit ball" is a feat which has been hard to encompass by the star sharpshooters of the sport, and while Chagnon was defeated at the finish, his exploit was full of significance.

SPENCER WINS FIRST

Spencer recorded his first major league victory in the first game after going to the rescue of Remy Kremer in the ninth. Glenn won out in the tenth, his fine bit of relief pitching coming on top

Bucs Save Fans Askin' Waivers on Cincinnati

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, we put in a pretty busy Sunday down at Cincy. Jule is so shorthanded I went along on the one-day jump and I was kept pretty doing one thing and another. It looked like we was gonna cop a coupla games, and the big crowd was just about ready to ask waivers on the Reds for the year when they come through with just enough runs to beat Leon Chagnon.

We had a lot of tough breaks in the last two innings. Bob Meusel took a long one off Comorosky that probably would have led to a run in the eighth and Bartell was left on the sacks in the ninth after

JONES, VOIGT WIN IN BRITISH AMATEUR

JOHNSTON ALSO ADVANCES AT ST. ANDREWS

BULLETIN.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 26.—Harrison R. Johnston, U. S. amateur champion, advanced into the third round in the British amateur tournament by defeating Major A. J. Barry, 1 up, here today.

By F. A. WRAY,
International News Service.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 26.—Taking his first 18-hole buddle with the ease of an antelope, Bobby Jones, world's greatest golfer, advanced to the third round of the British amateur golf championship this afternoon with a victory of S. Roper, Nottingham champion, by 3 up and 2 to play.

The victory came in the second round, after Jones had drawn a bye in the first round this morning, and thus the American ace was well into the body of the championship flight as a result of a few hours' play. With him in the third round was George Voigt, the able New Yorker, who beat Edward Tipple, England, on the nineteenth green.

If Tipple was a stubborn opponent, Roper was downright headstrong. He faced a Jones who seemingly had cast off his inhibitions concerning the 18-hole distance and was playing plus-perfect golf, yet Roper hung grimly on. Jones shot a startling 33, three under par, to the turn with an eagle 2 at the fourth as a result of a 120-yard pitch from a trap; yet Roper hit the turn in 36 and was only 2 down.

However, he lost the eleventh and twelfth, where Jones got successive birdies and, from that point, the match was a formality. The cards:

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|

BOBBY STARTS STRONG

Jones had to be good to lick an opponent who shot 15 of the 16 holes played in exact pars. However, Bobby was more than good. He was exemplary. Of the first five holes, for instance, where the match was won and lost, Jones had one par, three birdies and an eagle.

Harrison Johnston, American champion, survived the opening round by winning from Bernard Darwin, veteran internationalist, by 2 and 1.

Neither Johnston nor Darwin played impressive golf, the American's putter failing him with chronic regularity. Darwin, tiring badly in the stretch, seemed to become rattled in the face of Johnston's calm demeanor under fire.

The match was squared at the eleventh, but thereafter Johnston was always on top. He scored a pair of great 3's at the fourteenth and seventeenth.

AMERICANS BEATEN

John H. Forsman, of the Winged Foot Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., was eliminated in the first round by W. Hope Pilcher, of St. Andrews, 3 and 2.

Harvey Bates Perrin, of Los Angeles, was eliminated in the first round by A. S. Bradshaw, of St. Andrews, 4 and 2.

Frank Stevens, young Hollywood (Cal.) entry, defeated C. H. Longstaffer, of Aldeburgh, former Cambridge player, 5 and 4, in the second round. He received a first-round bye.

Robert E. Hunter, of Los Angeles, was eliminated in the second round by J. D. O'Hanlon, of Ringway, 1 up.

Bobby Baugh, Birmingham (Ala.) youth, who is captain of the the Oxford golf team, went into the second round at the expense of I. R. Patey, of Hayline Island, 4 and 3.

W. L. Hope, former British Walker Cup player, defeated D. G. Nairn, 4 and 3. E. F. Storey, runner-up in the championship in 1924, the last time it was played at St. Andrews, was beaten by F. L. Hird, of London, 1 up.

G. Parker Toms, of Los Angeles, was eliminated in the second round by E. B. Tipping, of Ashford Forest, 3 and 2.

Andrew Jamieson, who eliminated Bobby Jones in the Amateur at Muirfield four years ago, was beaten by Dr. J. B. Saunders, tall, lusty, young Scottish surgeon, 1 up.

VOIGT EXTENDED

Voigt's defeat of the 20-year-old Tipple, regarded as one of the best English prospects, was a great disappointment to the British gallery. Tipple is a first class player and battled the American throughout the 19 holes. The cards:

TWO ROOKIES IMPRESS

of his game-saving performance at Forbes Field Friday.

Chagnon and Spencer are a pair of "orthodox" righthanders who are pleasing to the eye. Each has terrific speed and a good hook, although the Frenchman is built along the sturdy lines of his ancestors, while the Binghamton youth has a frail appearance.

Deprived of Steve Swetonic and Ervin Brame, two of his aces, Skipper Ens had nothing else to do but to call on the two young righthanders. Spencer appeared to be ready for any test as he has had much experience in Class A ball. Chagnon's best recommendation has a Class B tag, which in the last analysis, doesn't seem to mean a thing. If a boy has the stuff he has just as much in a dust and cinder circuit as he will show in the majors.

MAY START AGAIN

The upshot of it all probably means that either of both of these lads will be called on again soon. Chagnon showed he can do what some of his superiors cannot accomplish.

Leon did not allow the Reds a hit until the fifth inning of the second contest, after the Pirates had trimmed the Reds, 6 to 5, in the opening clash of 10 rounds. "Shag" did not falter much at any time, although the Rhinelanders were able to unloose a little drive in the eighth that tied up the contest.

Meusel's catch of Comorosky's wallop at the start of the eighth militated against Chagnon and his mates, and the Bucco also failed to score in the ninth which Dick Bartell blasted open with a double. The home team broke the tie in the home half of the ninth to win, 4 to 3.

Larry Benton and Ray Kopf worked the first game for Dan Howley, Red Lucas winning over the Ensmen in the second encounter.

Jones' Father Lands Victory In Tourney

ATLANTA, Ga., May 26.—(AP.)—Bobby is not the only member of the Jones family who can win golf tournaments. Ask his dad.

While Robert T. Jones, Jr., was firing a 71 over the St. Andrews course in Scotland Saturday in preparation for the British amateur championship, his father—Big Bob—Won the one-day handicap meet staged here at Eastlake Country Club.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—As soon as Babe Ruth found the Literary Digest straw ballot showed the country was wet he started on a terrific batting spree. The Yankees hope he never sobers up. The Yanks are now going like measles through a public school but you will notice our Washington club is still on the top shelf. Experts that thought we were a flash in the pan now admit we are the pancakes themselves. Say, I see they want to bring the pitcher's box five feet nearer home plate to cut down long hits. That wouldn't cut down long hits, it would cut down pitchers in the prime of life.

The first bout will go on at 8:45 daylight saving time.

Leon Jordan and Bobby Richardson, not rivals, top a card in the Johnstown's Ambassadors tonight, while the New Castle Jolly Bowl is idle on its regular fight night. Andy Stabura, of Braddock, meets Tony Leone at Salem, O., with U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, boxing George Gallas in the semi-final. Herman Foltos, of Ambridge, meets Joe Belmont in a main bout in Baltimore, where he has become a good card.

Battling Glory, of Donora, has been matched to box Mickey Doris, of Johnstown, in an open-air feature bout at the Point stadium in the Flood City, June 11. Three nights before Glory will engage in a tourney fight at Steubenville, Meanwhile, he is holding in abeyance an offer to box Cecil Payne, of Louisville, at Cincinnati. Glory would like to battle Jackie Rodgers at 130 pounds, the lowest weight he can make.

Word from New York is that Phil Scott has been signed to box the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight next year, probably in Chicago. The thing will be known as a "defense of the title" battle and Scott will be palmed off again as the "leading contender." Or that, if you can.

The Meyers Bowl is rushing plans for its first wrestling show, to be staged Friday night of next week. Two prominent heavyweights will appear in the main bout and there will be three battles all told.

Buck McTiernan has been offered a bout for June 5 with the winner of tonight's scrap, Jones-Vincent Forgione battle at the Meyers Bowl. His manager, Danny Bustarh, says he is ready to accept if the price is right. The Bowl originally planned Tommy Freeman-Jimmy Delaney bout for this date, but Freeman has won himself a suspension by running out of a match with Tiger Joe West at Erie last Friday night.

SCHOOL TRACK CHAMPIONS ANNOUNCED

By JESS CARVER.

Featured by the season-long sprint duel between O'Dile Pryor, Negro star of Ford City; Mike Milligan, of Peabody and Bill Bohlender, Grove City flyer, and the relay efforts of the Uniontown and Steubenville High School mile relay quartets to better 3:34, high school track and field stars of the tri-state district brought to a close an amazingly successful campaign.

New Castle and Ellwood City won major triumphs, New Castle retaining its Pitt Interscholastic title Saturday in the Stadium and Ellwood dethroning Westinghouse as W. P. I. A. L. champion the week previous, besides winning the Beaver County title.

The sprint duel attracted attention from its very inception and held it to the end. In the matter of victories, Pryor finished out in front with two victories and one second place to his credit. Milligan won once and ran second twice, while Bohlender had a first and third to his credit.

BOHLENDER TIME BEST

However, Bohlender turned in the best time of the year when he was clocked in 9.9 in the Mercer County meet, and thereby won the season championship. Following is the history of the duel, a la tabloid:

At Geneva—Pryor beat Milligan in the finals, Bohlender pulling a hamstring after winning his qualifying heat in 10.1, without[illegible]

At Tech—Bohlender nutted the field, (another Pryor nor Milligan were competing) to win in 10 flat.

At W. P. I. A. L.—Milligan nosed out Pryor in a hair-line finish.

At Pitt—Pryor beat Milligan, who in turn outran Bohlender.

But track championships are awarded on best times and distances, and Bohlender's 9.9 was just one-tenth of a second faster than the best Pryor and Milligan could do. Besides, Bohlender competed in the broad and high jumps at all meets in which he ran against O'Dile and Mike, and he was never beaten in the broad jump, being the champion in the event.

Incidentally, he is the only double champion of the year.

No one was able to get under 51 seconds for the quarter-mile until Saturday, when the powerfully built Joe Stern, of Steubenville, tore over the Stadium cinders in 50 flat. And that is as fast as any scholastic quarter-miler has traveled heahabouts for some y'ars.

PRYOR 220 CHAMP

Denied the title in the century, Pryor steps into the select group in the furlong. He ran a 22.2 race here Sat'day, the best 220 of the year.

Other champions, McMurdo, in the 880; Clements, in the mile; Dunn and Bradley in the hurdles; Young, in the shot; Bruce, in the discus; Van Fausson, in the javelin; Moore, in the pole vault and Spencer in the high jump, were consistently fine performers.

The Tipoff

The meter at the Pitt meet Saturday compared very favorably with those at the state meet at Altoona. Altoona performers battled in better circumstances in the sprints, hurdles, shot, pole vault and broad jump. The Pitt efforts were superior in the 440, discus, javelin, mile and high jump.

In the 100 and 220 they were all even, which was only to be expected when it is considered that three of the best scholastic sprinters in the state competed here.

One would have brought you two and one against on Pryor in the 100 if Bohlender (Milligan was the favorite there because of his win over the Ford City flash the week previous. And Bohlender had the second there. The boys did Pryor out of the decision, forgetting the credit due Mike Milligan for Mike's and the great race against the Peabody star in the W. P. I. A. L. century.

Leyhart and Cassat put on a great duel in the century two-mile, the pair alternating for less than five times. Leyhart had the short end for the sprint, however, and beat the Pitt number handily.

It was worth while watching the finishes of genuine pinnacle that outpointed the quality pistol conformation of Pitt Schenkenbach, Ray Thomas, Bill Kise and Ralph Gartner. New Castle sophomore, as their team slowly but surely piled up a winning advantage.

In the morning during the field events, Bill Kise, noticed in his attentions "pinkfeat, which really is a powder blue, told me that he did not believe his team had much of a chance, especially when Alexander missed winning the discus throw by an inch.

A second faster and Peabody's crack sprint relay team would have tied its own Pitt meet for the distance. The combination of Bostick, Harris, Schaeffnack and Milligan will give most any scholastic sprint relay team a hard half mile. Thirty is hardly a week spot to be found in to mastap.

Ray Montgomery, Pitt all-American guard, fresh returned from Bobby's end, swung the hammer and took a second place. He brought back home regards from Lou Fitz and other Hollywood folk.

WEST PENN LEAGUE CLUBS BATTLE TODAY

C. & I. CHAMPS PLAY HORNE NINE

By TOM BIRKS.

Swinging into another week of activity, followers of the local teams will have plenty of games to become enthused over in the scheduled twilight leagues. In many loops, the leaders will be brought together and is bound to cause the standings to change considerable.

Two real battles will be fought this evening in the West Penn League. Wilmerding will appear at the Homewood playgrounds to play off a postponed game. The presence of the famous Eddie Artman in the East End should pack in the fans. The other battle brings together Homestead Aces and Whitaker making a local fight at West Park.

In the Central circuit, Joseph Hornes will meet Reick-McJunkin at Beechview. Manager Bill Stuhlfire has been giving the boys quite a number of independent games, so the C. & I. champs are ready to step out in defense of their title.

W. O. W. SHOEMEN CLASH

Three battles will be staged in the City League. W. O. W., last year's Greater Pittsburgh champion, will tangle with the Book Shoe aggregation at Olympia Park. The league leaders are going to have a battle on their hands.

The Smiths will appear at Sullivan Field to meet St. Johns. Seeing that Pat O'Shea, playing manager of the Saints, and a number of his players are former members of the Smith club, there is every reason to feel that the fans are going to see a real battle on the Liberty avenue lot.

The other game will find the City League champions, Pleasant Valley, with Jacoby in the field, meeting J. L. Thomas at Dean Field.

Two games are carded in the western division of the Steel City League. Clover Club will meet Dom Mazzie at Arlington Park while Fox A. C. travels to Moultrie Park to tangle with St. Joachims.

SMITHS, SAINTS WIN

The Jimmy Smiths defeated Stowe, 3 to 2, in a City League game yesterday.

In independent battles, the Muracos defeated the Speer A. C. 6 to 5; St. Clair Frogs won over the Cyclone A. C. 8 to 4. Allison Park downed Tarentum, 19-5, Homestead Aces won over Grandview Odds, 4-3. Crawfords routed W. O. W., 14-8. Hoffmans whipped the P. J. Cauls, 18-5, and Immaculate Heart defeated J. L. Thomas, 9 to 6.

The Homestead Grays hung up another victory at the expense of the Legion All-Star team of Zanesville, O., yesterday, winning by a score of 14 to 4.

SCHOOL TITLE GAME

THE North Braddock High School nine will defend its W. P. I. A. L. title against McKees Rocks High in a battle at Edgar Thomson Park, Braddock, tomorrow afternoon.

Babe Ruth Shows Correct Way To Play First With Man on

PLACING FOOT IN FRONT OF BAG PUTS IT IN DANGER OF BEING SPIKED BY RUNNER
WITH RUNNER ON, PLAY THE BAG ON THE INSIDE. THIS IS CORRECT STANCE.

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

Joe rather fancies himself as a first baseman, and every chance he gets he grabs a first sacker's glove and tries to do a Gehrig around that sack. While I was explaining some of the pitching stunts to Mac, he fidgeted around impatiently.

"Am, that stuff's bunk," he said finally. "Why don't you show us something about first-basing?"

"What do you want to know?"

"Well, how do I cover that bag when there's a man on first? When do I come in for a sacrifice? How do I know when the second baseman is to cover first?"

The picture shows the result. Here I have Joe all set for that play with a runner on. From that picture you can get a lot of pointers on first base play.

Notice first of all that he is playing on the inside of the bag. That has this advantage, that the first baseman is in a position to stretch his full length for a throw on a close play.

Joe is left-handed and you will notice he touches up with his right foot. That puts him in position to throw the minute he gets the ball and without shifting his feet. The reason a lot of first basemen get spiked is because they put their right foot in front of the bag and the runners sometimes spike them. Joe has the right stance for a first baseman.

With the runners on, you will notice that I've got Joe standing almost on the first base line rather than astraddle of the bag. Standing in that position he is in fine shape to tag the runner on a quick throw to first. Taking the ball in his gloved hand he can make the tag all with the same motion.

About coming in on balls. If a runner is on first and you figure the next hitter is going to sacrifice the first baseman comes in with the pitch in order to field a bunt that may come his way. At the same time the second baseman cuts across to cover first base on the throw and the shortstop moves over to cover second.

Another duty of the first baseman usually is cutting off throws from the outfield. What I mean is this. When a runner attempts to score on a sacrifice fly and there is a runner on first base both runners touch up and start with the throw. The outfielder makes his throw to the plate. The first baseman in that case runs in and if he sees there is no chance to get the runner at the plate he cuts off the throw and pegs to second to get the runner there. That's a play that requires a good arm and keen judgment. The good first baseman practices it a lot.

HILLTOP TEAM DANGEROUS NET FOE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Saturday's soggy weather wrought havoc with plans for the opening of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League title races, though despite rain and chill Jack Beatty's Stanton Heights crew went through with its program of entertaining South Hills, scored a 5-4 triumph, and thereby swung the circuit campaign into action.

The genuine strength exhibited by the Hilltop outfit in dropping its close verdict to the Heightsmen was most gratifying, for until Capt. Jimmy Creighton, of the Mount Washington host stepped out to fill serious lineup gaps created by the defection of Knoche, Hughes, Henderson and Wolfe this year it was feared that South Hills might prove a lamentably weak link in the Section I chain.

O'CONNOR BACK

As matters stand, however, Creighton has recruited Jimmy O'Connor, former Duke and Tech star; Al McCabe, of Wooster College, cousin Bill McCabe, of Penn State, and little brother Bill Creighton, from which group, along with himself, Shorty Cooper and Thomas he has fashioned a highly formidable array.

Meanwhile the McCabes and Bill Creighton, by dint of impressive singles decisions over veteran Stanton luminaries, have justified their being selected as first division timber. On the face of Saturday's returns, it begins to look as if Capt. Creighton's firm refusal to withdraw from Section I has not only confounded his critics, but is likely to prove a real boon to the game locally.

Another week-end racquet feature worthy of note was the thrilling victory of Shady Side Academy over the University School of Cleveland in traditional triangular competition involving the Fox Chapel and Forest City institutions and the Nicholas School of Buffalo. Shady Side had dropped a 3-2 fray to Nichols at Buffalo the previous Saturday, but rallied on its home courts to emerge on top against University School by an identical score.

DUKES BUSY

Grant Siverd's Duke varsity warriors will monopolize the college net card here this week, both Pitt and Carnegie having wound up their regular schedules, though the Panthers have still their classic extra tussle with University of California on June 4 to point for. Duquesne will jaunt up-state today for an engagement with Grove City and on Wednesday will bring the Grovers to the Bluff for a return seance. On Memorial Day morning the Hillmen will invade Beaver Falls for a clash with Geneva preliminary to the annual Tri-State Conference track and field meet at Reeves Stadium.

The Shady Side-University School summary:

Singles—Wick, University, defeated Arentorf, Shady Side, 6-2, 6-2; Herrmann, Shady Side, defeated Ward, University, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4; Crawford, Shady Side, defeated Hill, University, 6-3, 6-4.

Doubles—Arentorf and Herrmann, Shady Side, defeated Ward and Hill, University, 2-6, 9-7, 6-4; Wick and Weller, University, defeated Aaron and Crawford, Shady Side, 6-3, 6-3.

A'S, SENATORS WIN; ROBINS TOP GIANTS

Associated Press.

The current rookie crop in the major leagues has been unusually good, producing a number of young sluggers who have been showing the older players a few things about hitting the ball, but it has not been particularly rich in good pitchers. In fact it was something of an event yesterday when two of the younger generation of hurlers turned in good games on one afternoon.

Leroy Mahaffey, of the Athletics, who has been tried out in the majors before but did not make the grade, was the one winner of the two. Making his first start for the world's champions he turned back the New York Yankees in a neat fashion, stopping their batting spree with a seven-hit game to win, 10 to 3.

COOKE HITS HOMER

Mahaffey, who came up this year from the Portland Pacific Coast League club, perhaps recognized a kindred soul in dusty Cooke, of the Yankees, for he allowed Cooke two hits, including a home run, which aided his average considerably.

Leon Chagnon, of Pittsburgh, pitched well in the second game of the Pirate double-header, but he could not cope with the experience of his rival, Red Lucas, and the Cincinnati Reds broke their losing streak with a 4-to-3 victory. Lucas himself scored the winning run in the ninth inning. The Pirates gave Cincinnati its tenth straight defeat in the 10-inning opener by a 6-to-5 score.

The rest of the day's pitching triumphs went to veterans of at least several years' standing. Adolfo Luque, one of the ancients of the National League, held the New York Giants to four hits in 10 innings as Brooklyn won, 4 to 3, for its nineteenth victory out of 25 games in a winning streak that started when the Robins and Giants clashed in their last series.

HALLAHAN, ROOT CHASED

The projected battle of the National League's strikeout artists in the remaining game yesterday, turned into a slugging match in which neither Bill Hallahan, of St. Louis, nor Charley Root, of Chicago, lasted the full game. St. Louis held the league lead by rallying for four runs in the seventh inning and a 6-to-3 victory.

The fourth National League game, between Philadelphia and Boston, was rained out.

Fred Marberry and Ted Lyons held the hurling spotlight in the American League. Marberry gave the Boston Red Sox only three hits for a 5-to-0 shutout as Washington won its fifth straight game from Boston and its ninth victory in 10 contests.

Lyons pitched his sixth consecutive winning game for the Chicago White Sox, holding the Cleveland Indians to four hits while Chicago pounded out 16 to win, 9 to 1. He also achieved a record unequaled so far with his eighth victory in nine games.

Detroit and St. Louis provided the leading exception to the rule that the pitchers had the upper hand for the day by driving out 28 hits between them as the Tigers won the game, 9 to 8. Detroit used two pitchers and St. Louis four.

DAVIS CUP

Reports emanating from France would seem to indicate that Big Bill Tilden has played himself into top-notch form and is playing some rare tennis, all of which causes one to wonder whether or not Big Bill is thinking of changing his mind and making one more effort for America in the international Davis cup matches.

Knute Rockne

With La Coste definitely out, America would have a rare opportunity. Both Big Bill and Lott would have an excellent chance of defeating either Brugnon or Borotra. Allowing that Cochet will win both his matches, this would leave the key match in the doubles and there is every reason to believe that Van Ryn and Allison could repeat their triumph of last summer.

It all sounds very interesting, and America would appear to have an exceptional opportunity should Big Bill decide to come back into the field.

PROS BATTLE AT SHANNOPIN TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The first professionals' golf event of the season is being played today over the beautiful links at the Shannopin Country Club. Heap Big Chief Shannopin has called off his tribe of Indians so that the visiting professionals, 40 or more of 'em, can cavort at 18 holes medal play for a lot of good cash this morning, but this afternoon he will turn 'em loose and, if the professionals succeed in smoking the pipe of peace, the Indians will team up with the paid brigade in a pro-amateur competition. The wigwam will be decorated for the festive occasion, and Frank Ganser has put forth his best effort to offer delicious food and merriment for the dinner that is to follow the golf this evening.

The pros began their play shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, and after luncheon, will tee off with their amateur partners in a best ball match, pros to receive one-half of their amateur partner's handicap, at 2 o'clock.

HOTELMEN MEET

At the Chartiers Heights Country Club, members of the Hotel Club and Restaurant Men's Golf Association are playing in their second one-day event today. Word from Walter H. Mennigke, of Chartiers Heights, president of the organization, has it that the course is in splendid condition for this afternoon's competition, and that a full field is expected to play. Manager Ray Munk will put his best foot forward for the dinner to follow the golf.

The Three Hundred and Seventy-second Field Artillery is staging its first tournament of the season today over the splendid links at the Alcoma Country Club.

TUESDAY CARD DULL

There are no tournaments on local links tomorrow, but on Wednesday the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association stages its annual club team championship at four courses—the Pittsburgh Field Club, South Hills Country Club, Oakmont Country Club and Fox Chapel Golf Club. Sixteen teams, of eight men each, will play in morning and afternoon events.

A women's one-day tournament will be played at the Alcoma Country Club Wednesday, under the auspices of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania, while on Thursday, Section I, of the women's team league, will play at the Allegheny Country Club.

JOHNNIES SET TORRID PACE

Johnstown won five games and dropped only one to lead the way in the Middle Atlantic League during the seven-day period ending Saturday.

Scottdale, however, grabbed the lion's share of the offensive and defensive honors. The Little Cardinals batted out the most hits, 69, scored the most runs, 41, tied with Johnstown in hitting the most home runs, seven; tied with Jeannette in committing the fewest errors, four, and tied with Fairmont in holding the opposition to the smallest number of runs, 20.

Yesterday at Johnstown, the Johnnies started off on what may be another good week by walloping Fairmont, 12 to 3. At Wheeling, the Stogies won over Jeannette, 7 to 3. Charlerol defeated Cumberland, 4 to 3, at Cumberland, and at Clarksburg the Generals lost to Scottdale, 8 to 4.

JUDD RELEASED

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—(AP.)—Ralph Judd, obtained recently by the Cards from the Giants, has been released to Houston, of the Texas League.

GRAYS BOOK RED CAPS

The Homestead Grays will meet the Pennsylvania Red Caps, of New York, on Memorial Day. The first game will be played at Braddock at 3 o'clock and the second at Forbes Field at 6:30.

Bunts

The Dom Mazzie Club of the Steel City League, after winning five straight games, would like to book a double-header away from home Decoration Day. Call Joe Renner at Atlantic 1000.

The Ambridge Cubs are requested to call Carrick 2068 and ask for Charlie Kehres.

Homewood is missing Bernie Bell's pep per at the hot corner. The West Penn League team like to see Bell in action.

SCHOOL MEET TODAY

in four innings. The Yankee flinger had allowed only one run in 29 innings, and prior to the scoring of that tally pitched 26 consecutive innings without allowing a tally.

Pipgras is the only hurler in the majors who has turned in three shutouts to date, blanking Washington, Boston and Detroit. Jumbo Elliott, of the Dodgers, and Benny Frey, of the Reds, are the only other hurlers who have pitched more than one shutout. Each has blanked opponents twice.

George Pipgras

TED LYONS has made himself the leading pitcher of both major leagues in straight wins and total victories while keeping Donie Bush's White Sox at the top of the second division in the American League. When he beat the Indians yesterday, Lyons hung up his seventh straight triumph and his eighth of the spring. He has beaten every other club in the league except the Athletics, downing Detroit and Cleveland twice each. His only defeat was suffered at the hands of the Browns. No other pitcher has won more than five games in succession, this mark being held by Ervin Brame, Lefty Grove and Sam Jones. Lyons' closest rivals in total wins are Harry Seibold, Rube Walberg and Walter Stewart, each of whom has six decisions to his credit.

THIS WEEK BRINGS the annual high spot in national intercollegiate competition in track and field sports, the I. C. A. A. A. A. championship meet, scheduled for Friday and Saturday at the Harvard Stadium. It is the event in which far Western athletes almost yearly show the Easterners that the latter do not class in an all-around sense with Pacific Coast products.

In the last 10 years, the team honors have been won no fewer than eight times by the Pacific Coast entrants, and from all indications there will be no change this year in the usual order of things. Southern California has one of the strongest and most evenly balanced teams that ever came out of the West, and the Coast is so powerful in everything except the half-mile, two-mile and hammer throw that there appears to be no chance for the East to escape the loss of more than half of the individual titles as well as the team laurels.

TURF FOLLOWERS MAY not be kept waiting until the running of the Belmont Stakes to see the eagerly-awaited test of speed between Gallant Fox and Whichone. The two great horses may meet in the Withers Stake at Belmont Park next Saturday.

These stars are eligible for the Withers, and though neither William Woodward nor Harry Payne Whitney has yet announced a final starting decision, there is believed to be a good chance that both horses will go to the post, giving promise of one of the greatest races in years.

Eddie Tolan

SPRINTING FORM IS a queer thing. Recently the International Amateur Athletic Federation turned down George Simpson's 100-yard mark of 9.4 seconds because he had used starting blocks, and accepted Eddie Tolan's record of 9.5 seconds, made without blocks. You might gather from this that Tolan was considered faster than Simpson with mechanical appliances left out of the competition. Yet, at the Western Conference meet in Evanston last Saturday, without blocks, Simpson not only beat Tolan by a yard and a half in the hundred, but handed in another defeat in the two-twenty. And in spite of the margn by which Simpson conquered the little Negro in the century, his time on a lightning fast track was only 9.7 seconds. Simpson was three-tenths of a second slower than when he made his best mark with blocks, but even at that, Tolan, the accepted champion, finished a yard and a half behind him. What's the answer? Merely that it is only on certain days and at certain hours that a sprinter can be at the peak of his form.

$50 Auto Race Fatal to Driver

KANSAS CITY, May 26.—(AP.)—A contest for a first prize of $50 has cost the life of Lewis Wolfe, 21-year-old Kansas City racing car driver.

Wolfe died yesterday in an ambulance while en route to Kansas City after he was injured in a collision on a dirt track at Smithville, Mo., a suburb. His neck was broken.

Ross Hemminger, 28, of Junction City, Kan., driver of the other car participating in the collision, suffered an injured hand. A third automobile, driven by J. R. Baker, Kansas City, plunged into the wreckage, but Baker escaped without injury.

PIRATES SAVE REDS' FACES

startin' the inning with a double. Anyhow, it made Jule feel good to see a pitcher work nine rounds in his first start in the big show.

Leon has a fine hook and his fast ball is a dandy, too. He musta had a lot on the ol' apple because five of them Reds bit the dust on strikes.

The way things is breakin' I'm liable to get in there before we play those exhibition games. Well, I'm gettin' enough to do to stay in shape and any time Jule calls on me I'll be ready. I was kinda hopin' he'll let me play a few innings against the A's next Monday when they stop off here for an exhibition game, but I'll leave it up to him.

I asked Jule yesterday if the railroad companies had one of their lobbyists sittin' in when the Pirate schedule was made out. The team has been covering as much ground as Lindbergh in the past few Sundays. Jule said I should worry as long as I was gettin' my cakes and those nice comfortable upper berths where your watches and diamond rings are safe. I told him I'd swap mine for his any time, but he didn't hear me I guess, because he didn't say anything.

Better Business and Stock Rise Seen by Forbes

By B. C. FORBES

LOOKING AHEAD, the writer's confidence in the coming of rising prosperity and rising prices for stocks steadily is strengthened.

ADMITTEDLY, it is still easier to trot out unfavorable than favorable statistics, especially if comparisons are limited to last year's abnormal rise. The railroads are hauling less freight than a year ago, the volume of checks passing through banks is less, steel output is less, construction activity is less, employment is less, installment buying is less, automobile production is less, the general commodity price level is lower.

The unrestrained enthusiasm of last May has been transformed into uncertainty, not to say pessimism. Twelve months ago the prevailing notion was that nothing could possibly happen to even act as a brake upon America's pell-mell prosperity. The prevailing notion now apparently is that nothing can happen to start a movement towards prosperity.

THIS DRASTIC change in the action and the attitude of the country is one very potent reason for taking a distinctly hopeful view of the outlook.

For more than six months economy and retrenchment have been the national watchwords. Production has been severely cut. Spending has been vigilantly curtailed. Inventories have been allowed to run down. Unemployment has quickened the productive efforts of wage earners. Widespread attention to the stock ticker has given place to strict attention to business. Sobriety supplanted recklessness immediately the stock panic broke loose.

THE ALMOST GENERAL withholding of forward ordering of materials and goods has brought about a decline in many prices to the lowest levels in eight years, in some cases to the lowest levels since 1914. The borrowing of money for commercial purposes has been abnormally reduced. So have brokers' loans. Consequently, interest rates in New York have fallen inordinately to 2½ to 3 per cent for call loans, to as low as 3 per cent for short date time loans, to 3¾ to 4 per cent for commercial paper and to 2⅝ to 2½ per cent for bankers' acceptances running up to 90 days.

IN MY HUMBLE judgment this whole downward movement—in commodity prices, in buying, in employment, in security, has about run its course.

The summer months, proverbially dull, may not bring any pronounced upturn in industry or trade—or even in stocks.

But the trend promises from now on to be upwards rather than downwards, and by fall the whole complexion is likely to change.

FRIENDS who keep constant and close watch of what happens moment by moment and hour by hour on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, tell me that of late it has become easier to send stock prices up than down. They declare that important bears have found it difficult to cover their commitments without immediately causing an advance. Liquidation by the public manifestly has dried up, at least for the time being. When transactions fall below 2,000,000 shares for a full day, as they did last week, it is obvious that there is no general pressure coming from outside sources.

These same observers say that good stocks are being quietly accumulated by various extremely powerful institutions and individuals, including bankers, investment trusts and capitalists.

IT IS ASSUMED by many that nothing more than the customary summer backing and filling need be looked for in the stock market during June, July and August. Therefore, there is a tendency to hold off in the hope of being able to acquire investment stocks on somewhat more attractive terms between now and Labor Day.

My guess is that buying will begin to overtop selling before the arrival of September, and that the final third of the year will witness very spirited speculation.

Delays may prove dangerous.

THE GERMAN war bond issue here, now put at $82,500,000, will shortly be out of the way. So will the vexatious tariff, either by becoming a law or being vetoed by President Hoover, who certainly cannot view with any satisfaction the "limited" revision he promised. The time for adjourning of Congress is not far distant—and this, too, will be a relief.

Meanwhile, financial sentiment may be stimulated by merger announcements of the first magnitude. Indeed, more significant and important combinations than any that have gone before may be witnessed in the second half of this year.

THAT THE SECOND half will be much better than the first half cannot be doubted.

SPECULATORS DOMINATE TRADING

Stock Upturn Carries Many Shares to Higher Ground; Sale Volume Is Small

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP.)—Moderate speculation for the rise dominated trading on the stock market today, as traders appeared considerably encouraged by the firmer tone developed by the list late last week.

The change appeared to be largely psychological however, for business and trade news was meager and indicated little save that the early effects of the normal seasonal lull are now being felt.

April railway operating income reports continued to appear, and the latest reports detract somewhat from the improvement indicated in the first handful appearing last week. Net for the first 14 carriers to report shows a decline of nearly 27 per cent as against an indicated decline of 20 per cent last week.

RETURNS DROP

A few of the carriers have failed to earn divided requirements during the first four months of the year. But with strong cash positions and heavier traffic fairly confidently forecast for the last half of the year reductions in disbursements are not expected.

Presidents Donnelly, of the Northern Pacific and Williamson, of the Burlington reported fairly good crop conditions in their territories, but few signs of business improvement.

The Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank reported an increase of about two per cent in employment in the anthracite coal fields in April, over March, but a drop of 18 per cent from April, 1929.

MAKES MONTHLY SURVEY

The Guaranty Trust Company in its monthly survey of business found conditions practically unchanged and pointed to unsettled commodity prices and a high level of business failures as deterrents to improvement.

It stated, however, that the summer seasonal contraction may be comparatively moderate since the spring expansion was disappointingly small.

On the whole, however, Wall street remained fairly confident of the appearance of decisive signs of improvement by late summer or early autumn, and some commentators pointed to the history of past business recessions to back up these expectations. Bullish operations, nevertheless, were held in check by the fact that trading will be suspended for the remainder of the week at the end of Thursday's session, over the Memorial Day week-end.

TRADING AREA NARROW

Furthermore, the market was still regarded in conservative circles as working within a comparatively narrow trading area.

A few of the more volatile issues made wide gains. Allied Chemical and Peoples Gas sold up about 10 points, and among issues gaining 4 points or more were Macy, Case, Byers and Johns Manville. North American, Loews, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse Electric and Montgomery Ward rose 2 or 3 points.

Fokker to Make Capital Increase

NEW YORK, May 26.—A special meeting of stockholders of Fokker Aircraft Corporation of America has been called for June 18 to vote on a plan of directors increasing the no par common stock to 5,000,000 shares from 1,000,000 and changing the name to General Aviation Corporation.

The recently-formed Dornier Company, manufacturer of flying boats, is expected to become a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Aviation.

Bendix Aviation Corporation has purchased control of Charles Cory & Son Corporation, manufacturers of marine equipment.

Tonopah Mining To Boost Capital

A special meeting of stockholders of Tonopah Mining Company of Nevada will be held June 23 to act upon a plan to reorganize and readjust capital structure, including reduction af capital stock to $500,000 from $1,000,000. It is proposed to transfer all assets of the company to Tonopah Corporation and offer 100,000 shares of stock of Tonopah Corporation to Tonopah Mining stockholders at $5 a share. Proceeds will be used to pay stockholders 50 cents a share in reduction of capital stock.

Lead Production Off During April

U. S. Zinc Production in April totaled 43,080 tons against 47,573 in March.

TRADING RULES FOR TRUSTS

NEW YORK, May 26.—The listing committee of the New York Stock Exchange has ruled that an investment trust shall not purchase or otherwise acquire for its own account, or indirectly through a subsidiary, shares of its common stock. Howsoever designated otherwise than under exceptional and special circumstances.

In case any such purchase is made, the trust shall submit promptly to the committee all relevant facts in connection therewith in order that the committee may determine whether the number of listed shares shall be reduced by the amount so purchased, and upon request of the committee to take such steps as the committee deems necessary to make such reacquired shares unavailable for trading without further application.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 26.—(AP.)—Sharp early upturns in wheat values today resulted from scarcity of offerings here and from unlooked-for higher quotations at Liverpool, adverse reports about domestic wheat crop conditions southwest, together with word of decreasing stocks in Great Britain had a bullish effect. Opening at ⅝ to ⅞c higher, Chicago wheat afterward scored pronounced additional gains. Corn, oats and provisions were also firmer, with corn starting ⅛ to ¼c up, and subsequently continuing to ascend.

Wheat price bulges today carried the Chicago market to above any level reached since April 1. Houses with eastern connections led the buying here, and a general rush to purchase ensued when the pit was shown to have but relatively few sellers. Reports at hand indicating persistent unfavorable weather in France attracted particular attention, and unofficial estimates were current that the wheat crop of Italy is 60,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Among the wheat domestic crop reports from the southwest today that exerted a notable bullish influence was one saying that in the Texas Panhandle everything South of Amarillo to Slaytonville except a strip running from Northwest to Southeast through Plainview, Floydada and Lackney will do well to produce eight bushels an acre. It was added that even to accomplish this, the territory referred to must have ideal weather henceforth.

No Packard Diesel For Automobiles

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP.)—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 2 to 7 points under selling promoted by reports of generally favorable weather in the South over Sunday and relatively easy Liverpool cables. Concern for the return of unsettled conditions for possible showers in Oklahoma served to check the selling.

After easing off to 16.14c for July and 14.60c for the new October contract or about 3 to 5 points lower, the market steadied a point or two on covering. Liverpool cables said there had been Manchester, continental and Bombay liquidation with a poor off take in that market. They reported moderate cloth sales to South America and Africa and said yarns were pressed for sale.

The market was steady later in the morning. The failure of the better weather reports to bring in more selling seemed a disappointment to shorts, and there was scattered covering which found very few contracts for sale. July advanced to 16.20, while the new October contract sold up to 14.71. The market at midday was quiet at net advances of about 1 to 6 points.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP.)—The tone of the curb market strengthened in more active trading today. Pools operations were pushed forward with moderate intensity in some of the utilities and industrials, and gains of one to two points or so were frequent.

American Commonwealth Power B," a feature of the market late last week, crossed 50 to a new 1930 high. Electric Bond and Share advanced beyond 105, and Niagara Hudson Power exceeded 23. American Superpower improved about a point and was joined by United Light and Power "A." Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and American and Foreign Power warrants.

Call money renewed on the curb at 3½ per cent.

Bankers Oppose Change In Reserve Law

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

OPPOSITION TO PLANS to give member banks a greater share in the earnings of the Federal Reserve system was voiced by the American Bankers' Association today in a report of the organization's economic policy commission.

Bankers are, however, not altogether in agreement on the question. This difference in attitude has resulted in two bills being introduced in the Senate which contain plans for giving the member banks more than the return of 6 per cent annually now allowed on their investment in the stock of the 12 reserve banks.

Those favoring greater participation in Federal Reserve earnings wish to encourage membership in the Federal Reserve system by making the necessary investment more attractive to the banks which at present are not members. The American Banks' Association is heartily in favor of increasing membership in the system but believes that greater participation in the earnings offers several disadvantages to the country in general.

Not Operated for Profit

THE CHIEF ARGUMENT against giving the member banks more than a 6 per cent return is the danger lurking in any proposition that tends to turn the Federal Reserve banks into institutions conducted with an idea of profit, according to the association's report.

The fundamental value of the Federal Reserve banks to the nation is based on their freedom to conduct their operations with no other motive than to serve as reserve strength in the banking structure and to employ their resources with the single-minded aim of helping to maintain such an adjustment of the volume of credit to the volume of business that all constructive needs for credit shall be met and no expansion beyond those needs shall be facilitated, the report says.

No Place for Investment

IN THAT CONCEPTION there is no place for purely investment operations. The provisions of the Federal Reserve Act dealing with the earnings are so framed as to make the public welfare the whole consideration determining reserve bank policy. The provisions for specifically limiting member banks to the fair return of 6 per cent, for creating ample surplus funds and for absorbing all amounts above these allocations in payments to the government were designed for the very purpose of removing the profit-making motive from Federal Reserve policy. If the principle is now set up of making an attractive rate of return on the stock a lure for membership we might recede from that high purpose and give room for the temptation to conduct the banks with their policies conceivably tinged with motives other than those of pure reserve banking functions.

There is the danger, if member banks had too direct an interest in the question of earnings, that the public would be more critical than ever of the entire banking fraternity whenever economic conditions made it desirable to increase rediscount rates. The Federal Reserve under such circumstances would be even more reluctant than in the past to increase rates for fear of being subjected to the charge that extortionate rates were being made in order to earn greater dividends for the member banks.

Might Dissatisfy Banks

ON THE OTHER HAND the member banks themselves might later be dissatisfied if, in times of very easy money, the Federal Reserve banks should, in an effort to maintain their earnings, become too active in open market operations and thus further cut interest rates for the entire country. The report says:

"We are in full sympathy with the thought of making the Federal Reserve System more attractive to member banks but we do not feel that a wise measure for this end would be one tending to place undue emphasis upon earnings."

DAILY TRUE STORY

Violets for Magdalene

It Was Memo who told me, with that matter-of-fact air in which Europeans discuss the woman of the oldest profession, the little he knew about "La Bella Cocca," as notorious as she was beautiful.

Memo was a most excellent waiter. It was he who had recommended a special "cafe expresso" the very first time I had visited the Cafe Ronzani.

I had seen the beautiful creature, whose features were not yet changed from the softness of a Madonna into the harder lines of a Magdalene.

"Who is the young lady? Some one of the aristocracy, of title, I am sure," I said to Memo, in Italian.

Memo turned and looked at her. He arched his black brows and shrugged like a Frenchman.

"Of title, signorina? Yes, her title is 'La Bella Cocca!' Often she is here at noon to dine, often at midnight—either with a new gallant each time, or else here to find still another."

"Indeed," I murmured, striving to appear like a Continental when such subjects are discussed.

This was in January in 1919.

It was on the eve of Good Friday that I heard a quavering but appealing voice at my elbow ask, "Violetta, signorina?"

I was at the door of St. Petronio and about to push the panel inward.

I turned and saw, partly screened by the snow flurries, and with her back to the cold stone wall, a little old woman holding out to me a bunch of violets.

A basket on the flags beside her was half filled with the flowers.

I smiled into the wrinkled face and she smiled back at me.

"Yes, I will take them," I told her.

Violets are more beautiful in a spring snow flurry than at any other time.

Poor Flower Seller!

She produced a pin from her shawl. I stopped for her as she pinned the flowers to my fur coat, and I felt pity as I saw her swollen and reddened chilblain fingers. She tenderly patted the flowers in place. I gave her a lira and waved aside the change, then entered the church.

Inside, as I looked down at the Pieta surrounded by the tall candles, and at the forms kneeling, I caught my thoughts straying. I was thinking of the little old woman and her violets.

I hurried out. She was still there, offering the flowers to the stray passers, still smiling.

"This is indeed a cold night," I said to her in Italian. She smiled with pleasure to hear me speak her tongue.

"Come and join me in a cup of hot coffee—it is just the night for it," I said, and pointed across the street to the portico of the pavilione where the Cafe-Ronzani sent its cheerful lights out over the snow.

"Ah, no," she answered quickly in Italian, "not into that place—it is only for the rich to go there."

"Yes, yes, we will go," I said, with a laugh. I patted her shoulder and picked up her basket of flowers. "There they have a special 'cafe expresso.' It is delightful—it will warm the both of us. I, too, am cold—and lonesome."

"Ah, these Americans," she mumbled to herself in dialect, "one must humor them, for at heart they are good."

She did not realize that I understood her dialect as well as her pure Italian, nor did I let her suspect.

But there was a little more debating.

"A signorina with a hat and a coat of fur should not be seen in such a public place with a 'popolana,' garbed in but a drab shawl," she demurred.

But I had her by the arm and was guiding her across the street.

We entered. The old woman was plainly timid. I sighted my favorite corner table and piloted my guest to it. We sat down. She let her shawl slip back from her plain but neat dress. I removed my coat and placed it across a chair, taking care not to crush the violets she had pinned there with her poor chilled fingers.

Sees Daughter

The brightness and warmth made her gain confidence. Her bright eyes seemed roving into every corner. I ordered the coffee and "pasta." Memo's black eyebrows arched a trifle but that was the only indication he gave that I did not daily appear there with such guests.

We were nearly finished when I noticed the old woman draw her shawl about her and slump down, as if trying to make herself small and to hide.

"What is it?" I whispered. I thought she may have seen some enemy among the waiters.

"Please, signorina, don't let them see me," she stammered.

I followed her furtive gaze and saw "La Bella Cocca." She was more gorgeous than ever in her dress this night, and was escorted by a tall officer. As they advanced across the polished floor the little woman tried to shrink smaller.

"But why do you not wish those people to see you?" I asked.

"Because—she—she is my daughter," the woman answered.

"Your daughter!" I tried to keep pity from my voice.

Her eyes were on the beautiful wanton, and they were full of love and of yearning.

"But why should you not wish her to see you?" I persisted.

"But she is rich, it would embarrass her to see me here."

"Your daughter is a beautiful girl," I told her, unable to think of anything else to say.

"Ah yes, and good as well as beautiful."

"I better be going—I thank you—you have been kind," and she arose guardedly to her feet, picking up her basket of violets.

I could not insist that she stay so I smiled and nodded as she moved to the door.

Just then La Bella Cocca turned her face and caught sight of her mother. A start, a pallor, and she turned away her face and pulled the fur collar up high to hide that side of her face.

The old woman didn't see this. "Goodby and God bless you," she murmured and then she made the short distance to the side door and turned back to me.

"Forgive me for being so impolite to the American signorina, but not for worlds would I have my good daughter ashamed of me," she whispered.

Wore Costly Jewels

This time she left.

I sat there fingering the coffee spoon and thinking of the situation as I stared at the beautiful young woman. She had seen, from the corner of her eye, her mother's departure and lowered her fur. Then she secretly studied me. Twice she had spoken to me in this place, some trivial things.

Memo brought me more coffee.

The officer whispered an apology to her and left their table to join some fellow officers at a larger table across the wide room.

It was then that La Bella Cocca stared straight at me, as if hesitating. I was not surprised to see her arise and come to my table. She looked at the chair her mother had just vacated. I nodded and she sat down. She looked toward the side door as if fearing her mother would come back.

"She is gone," I said that she might know I understood.

"Oh—and did she see me?" she asked in a throaty voice.

"Yes," I said. I sipped my coffee and added, "You have a sweet mother."

"But how did she happen to be here with you?" Her voice showed apprehension.

"I met her," I indicated the violets on my coat across the chair, "she seemed to be cold—her hands—I asked her in."

The girl flashed a suspicious glance at me.

"And you knew?"

"That she was your mother? No, indeed."

She sat in silence, a troubled expression in her eyes. She wore costly jewels. Orchids were pinned to her furs.

"I did not wish my mother to see me," she finally said.

"Why?" I asked pointedly.

"I want her never to see me—to be ashamed of me," she whispered. It was at the tip of my tongue to tell her those were her mother's words, also, but I remained silent.

"What did she say about me?" she finally asked.

"That you were beautiful—and good." I looked into her eyes when I said this. La Bella Cocca had a heart, a soul! Her cheeks reddened then, with a blush of shame. She tried to speak but there was a sob in her throat.

"Is—is that all?" she managed to say, after a moment.

"That you were married to wealth, and happy—and she could not embarrass you or make you ashamed."

Exchange Flowers

"Oh—oh, God," she murmured faintly.

More silence.

Her eyes were on my coat. She could not be envious of it for the furs she wore were twice as beautiful and costly. Then I saw that she was staring at the violets—I wondered if she was thinking that her mother's crippled fingers had pinned them there.

Her eyes filled.

I saw the officer crossing the floor.

"Your—escort is returning," I said.

She blinked her eyes and arose. She turned to go and then turned back and went to my coat.

Her fingers reached out and caressed the violets.

"Would you—could you—favor me?"

"How?"

"Exchange flowers with me—please?"

I glanced at the rare orchids pinned to her furs and then to my violets. I smiled and reached to unfasten my flowers.

"Let me, please," and she deftly removed the pin.

Almost disdainfully she removed her orchids. They were fastened with a little gem-studded pin.

She fastened the violets to her furs with the little glass-headed pin her mother had supplied.

"Your pin," I said.

She made a gesture—as if it were nothing.

Just as her mother had deftly patted the violets in place on my coat, she patted them on her furs.

"I thank you," she said to me and she slightly bent her knee as she bowed.

She rejoined her escort at the table.

I sat alone. The room was smoky. It must have been the smoke in my eyes.

"Violets," I murmured, "violets for Magdalene."

FRISBY LAUNCHES BIG LAW ENFORCEMENT DRIVE

Picture, especially posed by Congressman Frisby, shows the official position everyone is asked to assume at the start of the drive tomorrow.

WASHINGTON.—Sharply at noon tomorrow Congressman Horace Jute Frisby will toss a handful of confetti into the air. This will mark the start of the Frisby Law Enforcement Drive, by which he hopes to stamp out lawlessness once and for all, here, there and everywhere.

"Our program committee," declared Frisby in a specially prepared statement, "is busily engaged on details. There will be something doing every minute! The committee, composed of myself and wife, and our small child, will issue instructions as fast as we can. All I ask at this time is that everyone ask no questions, but do exactly as he is told. When I count three, let's go! Sic 'em, Tiger!"

How about RUM, Mr. Ford?

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Aunt Bella—

Ans.—

Try to entice the pain up a few inches, where it won't hurt you so much. Ask me another one some time.

Aunt Bella.

But, after all, about the best way to counteract the lightness with which young people take matrimony is to let them grow old.

WE NEED BIG IDEAS

This is Gus (Upright) Doakes, big ban and furor man, who has generously offered the people his plan to put bootleggers out of business by passing a law against the manufacture of quart bottles that contain three-fourths of a pint.

And if we had more decent law-abiding citizens in jail, maybe we wouldn't be bothered by all these prison riots.

'Convenience' Is Right Of Public From Carrier

An important decision, to the effect that convenience of the public in the matter of transportation facilities has just and legal claim to be recognized as a right and is above the claim for exclusive service privilege based on priority of such service, is contained in a decision handed down here by Judge Victor B. Wooley, of the United States Court of Appeals, and concurred in by Judges R. M. Gibson and F. P. Schoonmaker, of the local United States District Court, who sat with Judge Wooley in hearing the case.

In effect the decision upholds the Interstate Commerce Commission in granting a certificate of public convenience to the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad for the construction of a short branch line to connect a plant line of the American Steel and Wire Company near Donora with the Connellsville branch of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, now under construction. The Pennsylvania brought the action, now dismissed, on the contention that Donora was well and efficiently served by it and there is no need for another carrier.

In a resume of the facts pertaining to the case the court states:

"The main question is whether at the hearing the Commission had public evidence on which it could base its finding of public convenience and necessity."

Among the things which the court finds to have been such evidence, specifically, is the shorter time for shipment that the new line would afford between Donora and Baltimore and between Donora and Detroit. The court also points out that the Pennsylvania, merely because of priority in establishing service, has no legal reason to assume that fact establishes for it a monopolistic right. Hence, none of its rights has been invaded, for which reason the case is dismissed.

People Realize Wisdom Of Washington's Advice

It was to be expected that ex-Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, former advocate of our entrance into the League of Nations, should champion the Permanent International Court of the League of Nations and to urge our entrance into it.

Mr. Kellogg's latest argument is that if we don't join the League's court, our foreign trade and our prosperity are threatened. He says:

"The United States should withdraw all pretenses of desire for international arbitration if it is not willing to become a member of the World Court. Isolation is no longer possible. Wars and economic conditions everywhere affect the United States because so many of our people are engaged in trade with other countries. The United States has as much need, if not more, than any other country for the World Court. Our foreign commerce amounts to about $10,000,000,000 a year, and the prosperity of our people depends largely upon the maintenance of that commerce."

To American citizens with long memories that ominous warning recalls a warning to enter the League of Nations uttered by Mr. Kellogg's friend, Herbert Hoover, in 1919. On October 2 of that year, advocating that we sign the League covenant without a reservation of any kind, he said at Palo Alto:

"I am confident that if we now attempt to revise the treaty we shall tread a road through European chaos. Even if we managed to keep our soldiers out of it, we will not escape fearful economic losses."

Well, we did more than attach reservations to the League covenant. We rejected it IN TOTO. We have "kept our soldiers out of it," and we did not "suffer fearful economic losses" until we were exposed to the benignant rule of Mr. Hoover with his incurable affliction of internationalism.

Staying OUT of the League and OUT of the League Court, the country from 1921 to 1929 experienced peace and friendship with all nations and the most prosperous period in its history, until Mr. Hoover took the helm.

It would be interesting to hear Mr. Kellogg tell how we GREW, year by year, to a foreign commerce amounting to $10,000,000,000, WITHOUT membership in the League Court.

It would be interesting to hear him do what no other League Court advocate has been able to do—tell us a single imaginable case which we could settle in the League Court and which we could not settle equally well in the Hague Court of International Arbitration, to which we ALREADY belong and before which we have settled cases from Roosevelt to Coolidge.

What Mr. Kellogg is trying to do in 1930 is what Mr. Hoover was trying to do in 1919—frighten us into the organization of the League of Nations.

The Kellogg Pact was a deliberate plan to get us headed towards the League. Though it was presented as a simple declaration of peaceful intent OURSELVES, we now learn that it must be "implemented" by "consultation pacts" and other arrangements to MAKE OTHER NATIONS be peaceful.

As a war preventer, the Kellogg Pact is an admitted joke. Mr. Kellogg himself in his speech refers to impending "wars and economic conditions EVERYWHERE" which "affect the United States."

The Kellogg Pact, its "implementing," and the League Court, are all parts of the scheme to get one American foot in the sticky flypaper, with a shrewd knowledge that the other foot will follow. The whole program of the international bankers, headed by Mr. Morgan, has been along these lines, ever since the League, as a whole, was overwhelmingly rejected by the American people in 1920.

Washington did not warn us against the League, he warned us against FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS OF ANY KIND.

He warned us even against undue sympathy with foreign nations.

He wanted this country to devote its attention to its own problems.

He wanted this government to attend to the welfare of its own people.

By following his advice for more than a century we have grown to greatness.

By discarding it, we will find ourselves involved in all the disasters that afflict Europe.

The citizens of the United States know this full well. They are entirely unwilling to be involved in any foreign entanglements.

It is only, therefore, by deception, by falsehood, by the repudiation of principles and the betrayal of public trusts that men like Kellogg and Stimson can hope to lead the country into the foreign entanglements which would be disastrous to the nation and profitable only to the international bankers.

IT IS ABOUT TIME THAT THE NATION RID ITSELF OF A PARTY WHICH CONSIDERS THE CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE INTERNATIONAL BANKERS OF MORE IMPORTANCE THAN THE WELFARE OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

"The Groaning Board," 1930 -:- Drawn by Nelson Harding

The table's groaning audibly
With sounds of split and broken wood,
But not because it's loaded down
With bountiful supplies of food.

The family table soon will bear
This heavy tariff burden laid
Upon it by the selfish few,
Should they by Congress be obeyed.

A Giethylphalate Party

We wish F. Scott McBride would make up his mind.

First he denounces home brew as the nectar of the gobs. Next he informs a committee that home brew is within the law if it doesn't spread its elbows.

"Bugs" Baer

Then he makes a complete detour on a dime and insists that he never plugged the contraband of thirst.

It's a question whether he did or didn't say that the Anti-Saloon League was a celestial merger.

Which is all right with us if we can claim that a damp cellar is an act of nature.

In the meantime enforcement has been switched from the Treasury to the Department of Justice. It's the old Army game. If a thing is a flop you transfer it to somebody else, paint your skull with iodine and ask for leave of absence.

The Treasury was doomed to defeat from the start. It couldn't make money as fast as the bootleggers.

The Department of Justice will handle the prohibition thing much better because it has a lot of lawyers who get around nights.

The situation is as chafed as the shoulders of a canal mule. After the justice squad gets a load of enforcement it will transfer the works to the spot it belongs.

And that's the secretary of Interstate Commerce.

He will solve the educational rebus by increasing the freight rates. Then the unwelcome job will be kicked around like a hat in a riot. When everything looks hopeless along will come a man of the hour and collapse in 60 minutes.

While the transfer bill was being eased along on its loose casters Senator Glad Tydings of another state sought to eliminate government poison from industrial alcohol on the ground that drinking was a recognized industry.

They snowed Senator Tydings under and hid the shovel. His substitutes for the current poison were pyridine, malachite green and giethylphalate.

Say, Senator, if we had that mixture we wouldn't need industrial alcohol.

That listens like an excellent concoction. How long do you shake it?

Giethylphalate sounds intriguing.

But how are you going to ask for it after the second drink?

WALTER REED

By Archibald Henderson

The story of the search for the cause of yellow fever and the stamping out of that disease in Cuba, and in tropical countries, is one of the stirring romances of modern science. It is a ghastly, blood-curdling story of willing martyrs to science and ruthless investigators who sternly laid the human victims upon the deadly altar.

The name immortalized in this story is Walter Reed, after whom a great hospital in Washington has been named. But his true monument is the unspoken but eloquent gratitude of the human race for rescue from the blight of one of the most deadly of plagues.

Walter Reed was born in Gloucester County, Virginia, September 13, 1851. He was a student for a time at the University of Virginia and later took his degree in medicine at the University Medical College in New York. Although he was appointed assistant surgeon in the Army in 1875, Reed's true career did not begin until after he had studied bacteriology under the famous physician and teacher, Dr. William H. Welch, of Johns Hopkins University.

Reed himself soon developed as a teacher and authority in bacteriology, giving lectures on that subject to the young officers of the Army Medical School. This was during the period when he was acting as curator in the Army Medical Museum at Washington. So brilliant were Reed's laboratory researches during the next few years that in 1898, at the beginning of the Spanish-American War, he was appointed, along with Dr. Victor C. Vaughan and Dr. Edward O. Shakespeare, to investigate the epidemics of typhoid among the American troops in Cuba.

In 1900 the desperate sanitary conditions in Cuba and the deadly ravages of yellow fever prompted the appointment by the United States Government of the Yellow Fever Commission, with Walter Reed at its head. It has been said that "yellow jack" killed thousands more American soldiers than the bullets of the Spaniards killed. It was no respecter of persons slaughtering indiscriminately members of General Leonard Wood's staff and American privates. Despite the effective carrying out of General Wood's orders to clean up Havana, the scourage continued unabated. It was the greatest yellow fever scourage in twenty years.

At this time it was quite generally believed that a certain microbe, known as Sanarelli's organism, was the cause of yellow fever. Reed went at once to Quemados, studied 18 cases of yellow fever in the hospital and made the most exhaustive search for bacilli—but without result. But this complete failure caused Reed to listen to the clamor of the shrewd Dr. Carlos Finlay, of Havana, who deserves to share the laurels of fame with Reed.

For years Finlay had been asserting, largely on the basis of a clever "hunch," that yellow fever was caused by a mosquito. People laughed at him, experts scorned him; Finlay was an "old crank." Reed investigated the matter, verified strange stories, looked into peculiar cases—and concluded that there was something in Dr. Finlay's theory.

This was a deadly, cruel business—with human beings as possible victims led to the sacrifice. It was not possible to give yellow fever to an animal. So it was necessary to have men who would let themselves be bitten by mosquitoes that had fed on yellow fever cases. Jesse Lazear and James Carroll volunteered; Carroll recovered from the resultant yellow fever, but Dr. Lazear died, a heroic victim to science.

Soldiers were sent to live in a house filled with the cast-off belongings—pajamas, sheets, pillows of patients who had died of yellow fever; but none contracted the disease. It began to look as if the mosquito were the culprit, further tests clinched the matter and Reed could pen the memorable words: "The essential factor in the infection of a building with yellow fever is the presence therein of mosquitoes that have bitten cases of yellow fever."

As a result of the great sanitary effort which followed, yellow fever was wholly stamped out. Reed, who died on November 22, 1902, is one of the great names in the history of American science.

By Elsie Robinson

Happy?

"Well, so-so" you mumble. "Sometimes—but not always. There's always something to take the joy out of life. But of course, that's just the breaks."

But is happiness "just the breaks" or is it something that most people can achieve and maintain if they know how to go about it? Professor Pitkin says it isn't and it is, in his new book, "The Psychology of Happiness."

Joy doesn't just happen—we achieve it, says Professor Pitkin. We achieve it through knowledge and control of ourselves and our environments. And, if we fail to achieve it, that isn't a sign that Fate's an old meanie and has it in for us. It's a sign that we don't understand ourselves, or life, and don't know how to ride hard on either.

Man's life is divided into four great planes of development—the savage, the barbarian, the intellectual and the scientist. And a man's chance of happiness depends on the plane of his development.

A savage's chances are pretty slim. Sometimes his lot is cast in pleasant, peaceful places, but generally he's beset, fore and aft, by wild beasts and enemies, pestilence and elements. And he is even more beset by the darkness within himself. He is so ignorant that he must take life as it comes—and it usually comes hard. A barbarian's a bit better off.

"Barbarians," says Prof. Pitkin, "have learned to control some important forces and conditions in their environment, but not in themselves. They can plow, weave, build cities and monuments, drill slaves to work and soldiers to fight. But they understand nothing about the workings of the human mind, the emotions, the body's cravings and the spirit's aspirations."

And so the barbarians cannot wholly plan their lives or control their own happiness. "Half-masters of nature, and slaves to the unknown master within themselves, they blunder through life. The countries which love to call themselves civilized still harbor millions of barbarians. They know so little about human nature that they do not know they are barbarians."

Millions of barbarians—are you one of them?

Yes, I know you wear civilized clothes, conduct civilized work, go through civilized gestures. But do you know what it is all about? Do you know what you, yourself, are all about? Can you understand or control the forces that shape life? Can you deliberately plan and achieve happiness, cleaving your way through fear and confusion and opposition, within and without you? Or is happiness, for you, "just the breaks?"

These Treasures

I fear no other loss if I
May keep these treasures till I die;
Untouched by time, undimmed by toil,
Deep-rooted in my being's soil,
Love is a prize that I would hold
As any miser clasps his gold.
Love is a blessing I would share
With all, a gift as free as air.

I fear no other loss if I
At will may leave reality,
When life becomes too harsh, too cold,
For realms where dreams' bright flowers unfold.
Brave hope and faith are gems of mine
That help make every day to shine,
So for no other loss I weep,
If these rare treasures I may keep.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The most primitive way of multiplying, the method used by the smallest and simplest creatures, is by splitting the whole body into two halves, each of which grows into a complete new individual.

This is known as binary fission. In such cases the offspring is not merely a detached part of the parent; the whole substance of the parent becomes offspring. The parent leaves no corpse. It ceases to exist; but for it there is no death—only duplication.

H. G. Wells

This reproduction by splitting, this multiplication of substance passed on into ever new individuals, is most spectacular in the bacteria.

A simple bacterium in a congenital nutrient soup may easily accomplish its whole span of individual existence in half an hour. At zero hour, we have one specimen; in half an hour, two specimens—five hours, 1,024—10 hours, over 1,000,000—24 hours (if the food holds out), hundreds of billions.

When the dividing animal has a complex structure, remarkable rearrangements must occur at each act of fission. The complicated protozoan Oxytricha, for instance, although it is only a single cell, has a definite shape, with special bristles which act like legs, and a gullet armed with vibratile plates.

During fission the old organs disappear, new organs appear in each future individual, and, while division is being effected, develop into their definitive forms and migrate to their definitive stations.

Binary fission, we may note, is by no means unknown in many-celled animals. Not only do many sea-anemones reproduce by splitting themselves slowly through from the mouth downwards, but this longitudinal fission is one of the main methods by which the huge colonies of corals are built up from a single original polyp.

Transverse division on the other hand, occurs in various worms, especially Planarians.

From this method, two other main methods of asexual reproduction have been derived.

One is multiple fission. In this, the single individual divides into many small ones, either by a series of binary fissions following immediately one upon the other without time for any growth between, or, more frequently in single-celled forms, the central nucleus alone divides repeatedly, and the cell as a whole then splits up simultaneously into as many miniature cells as there are nuclei.

The parent individual becomes a mass of small cells. This method is frequent with single-celled creatures which grow—comparatively speaking—to a large size, such as Foraminifera, or the common large Amoeba, and is found also in the malarial parasite.

The other method consists in making the two products of division unequal. Sometimes, as in various Flatworms and Annelid worms, reproduction is by transverse division, but the hinder individual is at first small and unformed, and only gradually grows and develops.

This method has the biological advantage that the original individual retains its individuality, its head and general alertness, while giving rise to a new specimen from the less specialized tissues of its hinder parts.

Sometimes we find this process several times repeated, and then whole chains of incompletely developed individuals may arise behind the original head, trailing after it until growth has developed them far enough to be detached.

Another variation of this method is adopted by the polyp form from which, in many species of jelly-fish, the adult medusal arise. Instead of a string of offspring trailing behind a moving parent, the new individuals appear upon the parent as a fixed stem.

The advantage here lies in retaining the fixed attachment during the whole process. The original fixed polyp (which develops from the fertilized egg) becomes divided by a series of transverse grooves into what looks like a pile of miniature saucers, frilled and lappeted at their edges.

The top one of these is the most advanced in development, and is the first to be cut off and swim away as a baby medusa, the rest one by one following suit, leaving the parent stalk to divide and divide again.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Aroused by a nit-wit telephoning me to pronounce e-p-i-t-h-a-l-a-m-i-u-m and I hung up in his ear. So up and a card from Watterson Rothaker in far-away Egypt, where everybody seems to have gone, and to breakfast with Winnie Sheehan.

In the afternoon with my wife to the news reel theater and there was a talkie by a brave Chicago policeman who, somewhat lacking in suave social graces, had killed eight bandits and had to glance at notes to remind himself of their names. And for some reason we grew hysterical and had to leave.

To tea at Clara Bell Walsh's and Ed Wynn, Oscar Shaw and some others there and so walking through the park in the silvery dusk and came upon a man who asked an alms and upon receiving it said: "You may be doing this yourself some day" which I thought unnecessary.

A gentleman, suddenly ousted from a $30,000 a year job, dropped in today philosophically to observe: "I don't want another big job. It hurts too much to lose it."

The biggest blow in losing an important job is to pride. Yet years of observation convince me men who lose such posts—unless through drink or dishonesty—usually go to more important jobs. Most men who reach enviable positions in the world have been given the gate several times. It is not losing one's job but one's grip that counts. And those who care for such prattle poetized should turn quickly to the credulous cooings of Eddie Guest.

Macaroni parlors are opening up in the Forties to snaffle up some of the spaghetti trade. Next to chop-suey restaurants, the spaghettists control the mid-town eating belt. And each one is, of course, "the little place where Caruso used to dine several times a week."

Caruso was not especially devoted to spaghetti. Raviola was his dish. When he dined on spaghetti he usually prepared it himself in his apartment in the Hotel Knickerbocker. Three Italian cafes feature chairs where the immortal tenor used to sit and the trickery brings trade.

Similarly, tourists thrill to occupying the bench with the identifying brass plate where Ben Jonson used to park at the historic Cheshire Cheese in London. Yet accurate historians say it is hokum. Some indeed say Jonson was never inside the place.

The famous Peacock Alley in the new Waldorf will be three times the length of the one in the old hostelry. My memory of joining the gawks for the first time in the original Peacock Alley is tinged with embarrassment. After sitting there popeyed in a deep cushioned divan for an hour a gentleman with the unmistakable derby of a house detective asked me if I happened to be waiting for someone.

I told him no one in particular and what business was it of his? And he frog-walked me to a revolving door and drop-kicked me into an alley in a manner that was not at all lady-like.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Large and increasing responsibilities have added constantly to your income, perhaps.

Considering the time, thought and study required to keep up with your advancement, sometimes you wonder whether it is worth what you get out of it.

A person with a little home, small income and fairly good job seems to be better off than you are.

He is carefree and has more time to follow his own inclinations.

Often you think you would like to change places with him if you could.

But you would not, after all.

What you earn provides your family with many things his family cannot afford to have.

And he is not free from care and worry as you, at first, thought.

You don't have to worry about losing your job—he does.

The bugbear of not having enough to support yourself and wife does not confront you, as it does him, when he thinks of his old age.

He cannot give his children the advantages you can.

You do have a lot of grave conditions to worry about that the poor man—the man of small means—is never free from.
